EASTERN railroads, with government's permission and the public's blessing, will combine various systems into one big system, making possible greater efficiency and great economies. Freight will not be hauled over mountains when it might go along level ground. And employes will cease wasting time trying to divert freight to their railroad from some other railroad.

SOME railroad presidents may not like it. The Indian rajahs didn't like being united under British control. But they were reconciled when they found themselves just as prosperous as ever and much safer. So it will be, perhaps, with the railroad rajahs.

WALTER PARKER, who knows, tells the Foreign Trade convention at Houston that this country will some day do a business of ten billions a year with our Latin-American neighbors on the south.

Uncle Sam has the billions for building up the trade, but to get it and keep it we should imitate Britain and Germany. They send young men to learn the methods of foreign countries. To rely on "go-getter," high-power salesmanship is silly.

ALSO we ought to select our consuls for what they know about business in foreign countries—not for what they know about politics at home.

IN OHIO, where coal miners are striking, Prosecutor Paul V. Waddell is quoted as follows: "We have had to imitate some of Russia's methods and forget what we learned in school about the Constitution."

In other words, according to the public prosecutor, it has been necessary to "scrap free speech guarantees." If you let men talk they will do what you don't want. The simplest thing is to prevent their talking.

THAT was done in Russia long before Bolshevism took charge. The Czars, in the long run, found that it didn't pay.

Mine owners may learn, eventually, that writers of the Constitution knew what was good for this country. They were not Bolsheviki; far from it, and included conservative rich men.

MENTION to 1,000,000 Americans at random three names, Archimedes, Descartes, Joe Wolcott, and ten will know Joe Wolcott for every one acquainted with the other two.

Thirty years ago Joe Wolcott had crowds following him. He was called "the Giant Killer," "the Barbados Demon," "the Black Cyclone," and was the welterweight champion of the world. The greatest heavyweights had to think up good excuses for not meeting him.

NOW Joe Wolcott, a shrunken, round-shouldered, small-sized colored man, dressed in a porter's uniform, opens the side door of a theater in New York to let the audience out when the show is over.

His show is over.

Less profitable, but better on the whole, to be Archimedes.

CHICAGO'S Crime Commission names three judges of the Criminal Court, accusing them of being in partnership with criminals and supplying unpleasantly convincing proof.

FLIERS PAY BENNETT TRIBUTE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—In a drizzling rain, which only added to the melancholy aspect of their mission, the German-Irish fliers made a pilgrimage to a new grave in Arlington today and there paid an unostentatious tribute of respect and admiration to Floyd Bennett, the heroic Polar pilot, who sacrificed his life in an effort to aid them.

It was raining and dismal as the trans-Atlantic trio, Baron Gunther von Huenfeld, Capt. Hermann Koehl and Maj. James Fitzmaurice, motored from Bolling Field across the Potomac to the spot where Bennett was buried yesterday. They left the field shortly before 9 o'clock.

Priceless mementos of the Bremen's epochal flight across the Atlantic were placed on Bennett's grave by the fliers. They consisted of the German, Irish and American flags which were brought over aboard the Bremen.

Bare-headed in the slashing rain, they stood silently about the new made grave on the little knoll while attendants kept back a crowd which even the elements could not daunt.

Tent Crash Perils 20

Twenty automobile dealers and watchmen narrowly escaped injury and from $10,000 to $15,000 damage was caused this morning when a huge tent housing the South Hills District Automobile Show, Pioneer avenue, West Liberty, collapsed from weight of snow and force of the wind.

Three large center poles gave way when outer supports were removed to rid the canvas top of snow, and crashed onto the tops of automobiles which had been collected in the center. The machines kept the poles from falling to the ground and saved the men inside the big covering.

Sixty new cars were in the tent, and several of these were almost demolished. The tent covered more than half an acre.

Snow Calls Off Game Here

The final game of the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati series, scheduled at Forbes Field this afternoon, was called off on account of snow this morning just in time to permit the Reds to make an early train for Cincinnati.

Upon receiving official word of the postponement, the Cincinnati players were rushed to the Pennsylvania Station, where they boarded a train for home. They meet the Pirates in a Sunday game tomorrow afternoon.

Following the Cincinnati game the Pirates will return home, where, on Monday, they open a three-game series with the Cubs.

Humane Society Calls Dance Brutal

"The dance marathon is brutal and I'm sorry we can't move to prevent it," W. F. H. Wentzel, executive secretary of the Humane Society, declared today. "If anybody treated an animal that way we'd arrest him. However, in our activities we are limited to animals and persons who are unable to speak for or represent themselves. If we could stop the marathon, we would."

LET IT GO ON! SAYS BACKER

BULLETIN.

The marathon dance must cease at Motor Square Garden at 11:45 p. m. tonight.

At 12:45 p. m. today, Director James M. Clark announced his ultimatum. The dance and music in Motor Square Garden will cease at 11:45 p. m. and there will be police on hand to see that this order is carried out, he said.

"Let the dance go on!"

This, from Milton D. Crandall, in the face of threatened prosecution of dance marathon promoters, should the three remaining contestants keep shuffling through Sunday.

At 1 o'clock the six dancers had completed 112 hours of continuous hoofing in Motor Square Garden with none of them showing any signs of weakening.

Crandall and his associate promoter, John L. Hernon, have reached no decision as to how, when or where the dance will be carried through Sunday.

Police say they will not permit the dance to go on after midnight.

"If they take the dance to the country, we will prosecute," an-

TELLS WHY OF CITY'S SOOT

Why is Pittsburgh soot?

How many Pittsburghers are willing to acknowledge that soot is one of the community's richest assets?

Everybody knows full well that Pittsburgh's atmosphere contains no more soot to the cubic foot than that of dozens of other towns and cities, but Pittsburgh has the edge because its soot has been advertised throughout the world for more than 100 years. Repeating the question, why is Pittsburgh soot?

The answer: So that some of the people of the United States could be induced to live somewhere else.

SNOW BLOCKS MOST ROADS

A late April blizzard gripped Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania today, causing widespread damage to telephone, light and power wires, blocking highways in mountain districts, delaying trains and leaving a trail of snow-stranded automobile tourists.

"The worst storm on record in Western Pennsylvania for this late in the season," said Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

With the highways choked by drifting snow and miles of telephone lines swept down, Pittsburgh is cut off from communication today with the southern border of the county and the entire southwestern portion of the state. Scores of automobiles and motor trucks have been ditched and traffic is paralyzed.

Sweeping in from the east coast the storm was stil raging at noon today. In the city three inches of snow and slush covered sidewalks, the mercury fell to 31, a record low for this date, and the wind blew at the rate of 24 miles an hour.

18 INCHES REPORTED

From Fayette, Somerset, Westmoreland, Cambria and Greene counties came reports of snowfall up to 18 inches, poles down from sleet, snow and wind, some of them falling across highways, telephone and power service paralyzed and the state highway department caught unaware with snow ploughs dismantled. Hundreds of autoists were stalled, many being taken into homes along highways for shelter and food.

Drifts four feet deep were reported on the Washington pike south of Bridgeville and 20 cars

LaGuardia Noisy--Meyer

John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator, was entirely within the law when he investigated jurors who were to hear liquor cases here, he said today in answer to charges made yesterday in Washington by Representative LaGuardia, of New York. LaGuardia charged that "bootlegging is political patronage in Pittsburgh and they want to be sure they don't send some of their own patrons to jail."

"At the request of the United States District Attorney, prior to each term of court, investigations are made to determine the fitness of certain citizens for jury duty," said Pennington. "This is done simply that the United States District Attorney may have some knowledge of the character, fitness and qualifications of the jurors who are called to serve. This is not an investigation of an individual jury, but a general investigation of the entire panel. This procedure was adopted long before I entered the prohibition service.

"I had been advised by United States District Attorney John D. Meyer, Assistant United States District Attorney J. A. Richardson, former chief legal adviser of W. H. McNaugher, and my present chief legal adviser, Louis E. Graham, that there is nothing illegal or irregular in this procedure."

Mr. Pennington explained that the requests for information concerning jurors was made to postmasters under his own name instead of the district attorney, because he had a larger clerical force to handle that kind of work than the district attorney.

One of the most constant marathon spectators is Tony Phillips' mother, who hasn't left the garden for more than a few hours since Monday.

BOTH GENERATIONS

More than one generation lost sleep through the long fifth night. The very young lady shown here, for instance, was present at dawn. She's Leah Goldie Angel, Amerita Club "mascot," and her daddy's on her left. Leah sent up one cry after another for the Phillips-Neiman team.

OPERATORS SPURN RATE TALK

REFUSE TO ATTEND PARLEY

Pittsburgh coal operators have rejected the invitation of the Northern railroads to attend a conference in Cincinnati next Thursday to consider a possible adjustment of lake cargo rates. In a letter to railroad traffic executives A. B. McElvaney, secretary of the Pittsburgh Coal Operators' Rate Committee, yesterday stated that a compromise in lake rates would not be considered. It was added that the reluctance of the Northern carriers to grant an immediate and voluntary 20-cent reduction on Pittsburgh coal rates to lake ports might be due to "inter-corporate or financial relationship" between the Northern and Southern roads.

In shipping circles today it was declared that the call of the railroad coal conference "was merely a gesture intended by the carriers to further befog the rate situation." The operators indicated that unless an immediate reduction is granted on lake cargo rates the case will be continued before the Interstate Commerce Commission by aggressive action.

In their letters the operators said: "The Pittsburgh coal operators are astonished that the carriers serving this district would suggest that we meet the Southern operators and carriers at Cincinnati for the obvious purpose of considering a compromise on the lake rate issue."

ments which have conspired against them at every turn, the fliers decided to leave Washington for New York by train. They secured reservations on the Pennsylvania train leaving the capital at 1:05 p. m.

Bad weather between Washington and New York, coupled with the soggy condition of the flying field here, made it impossible for them to fly to New York as they had planned.

PLANE FORCED BACK

MILLER FIELD, STATEN ISLAND, N. Y., April 28.—The Ford plane, piloted by Bernt Balchen, which set out from Curtiss Field at 8:20 this morning for Washington, landed here a short time later, forced by bad weather to abandon the flight for the time being.

Balchen had only one passenger in the plane with him, Charles Wensel, a Ford mechanic.

The plane passed over Staten Island about 9 o'clock en route to Washington. When Balchen reached a point somewhere over New Jersey, he found fog and rain conditions so bad that he could not proceed without great danger to the plane, so he decided to turn back. He brought the plane down onto Miller Field without any difficulty.

nation is one of the best known men in the American diplomatic service. He added that Pittsburghers are so likeable and the city so prosperous that America's entire population would center here and refuse to leave if Providence had not sent the grime to soil their linen.

This question was asked and answered in a letter which will be published in the Sun-Telegraph in a series of estimates of Pittsburgh, which will begin Monday. These letters are from the most celebrated people in the country. They are written in a delightfully informal style and will give native Pittsburghers a new angle on their home city. Pittsburghers will be interested, too, in knowing what their favorite authors, opera singers, motion picture stars, political leaders and business men think of this community.

Do all praise Pittsburgh? No, indeed. Watch for the first letter next Monday in the Sun-Telegraph.

AIR HERO -:- BENNETT BURIED IN STATE -:- MOURNED

HUMBLE HERO

Floyd Bennett, humble hero of the first North Pole flight, has been laid to rest with the highest honors of the land in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington. Millions at the bier and throughout the land paid homage. Above, his body lies in state with the military, naval, marine and civil honor guard.

HIS LAST "FLIGHT"

THROUGH NEW YORK

The funeral coterie for Floyd Bennett passed from Quebec, the hospital to which he was rushed when he fell ill with pneumonia in his effort after leaving a sick bed to carry succor to the Bremen's marooned crew, to Washington, by way of New York. Broadway paid its homage to Lieut. Bennett here.

RETURN BOARD RULING AWAITED

23 CHURCHES MARSHAL FOR VICE DRIVE

Twenty-three East End churches, uniting in a protest against lawlessness in Pittsburgh, are marshaling their forces for Sunday night's meeting in the Sixth United Presbyterian Church.

Members will assemble in their respective churches and march to the Sixth Church, North Highland avenue and Station street. Two other churches nearby, the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, and the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, Highland and Penn avenues, will be used for overflow meetings.

Pastors of the various congregations uniting in the protest have aroused their members to the alleged indifference of officials to liquor, lawlessness and vice conditions. They have pointed out that in the shadow of some of the largest churches in East Liberty illicit sale of liquor has been going on, that gambling machines are in operation and commercial vice has been tolerated.

Speakers, it is said, will tell facts concerning conditions in Pittsburgh and East Liberty in particular. Plans have been made to convey the speakers from one church to another, where the meetings are being held, so that the audiences will hear the entire program.

OFFICER AT MOON RUN CONVICTED OF SLUGGING

Albert Chase, deputy constable of Moon Run, was convicted of aggravated assault and battery in Criminal Court yesterday, and Visiting Judge William T. Darr of Brookville paroled him for one year. The prosecutor was Hobart F. McGinniss of Stowe township, who alleged that while walking with his wife and relatives last August 21 on the Pine Hollow road he was beaten on the head with a blackjack by Chase after trivial argument.

Won't Be Long Now! Oh, No! at 100th Hour

By

Cora Dean

(This story was dictated by Miss Dean as she danced out the hundredth hour with Albert Bonach, champion, in the national dance marathon.)

It won't be long now, will it?

We've been moving along since Monday night. If it's necessary we'll keep on moving until next Monday, or two Mondays, or three, because Al and I intend to be the last ones standing.

We're in shape. Al and I trained for weeks. And we're all right now because we trained. Al laid out a schedule of exercises and dieting that's helping.

In our rest quarters Al's mother, sister and young brother are there. All helping and encouraging us. That helps.

You remember I lost my job in the store by going into the marathon? Well, I can have it back. My boss told me if I went into the dance I needn't come back.

But last night the real big boss came out to the Garden. Mr. Crandall had written him and told him that was a "fine idea" to fire me because I wanted to dance in a marathon. So that real big boss came out last night, gave me a little present and said I could have my job back any time I wanted it. How's that for good news?

Friday night wasn't so bad. The Homestead firemen and policemen sent in $31 to encourage Al and me. And lots of other persons sent us little presents.

Once in awhile things got monotonous. So we'd start talking here and there with the front-row spectators. Several of them asked us if it made any difference whether the orchestra plays a waltz or a foxtrot. It doesn't. Of course, our dance time doesn't always agree with the music, but we get along just as well on "Ole Man River" as we do on "Together."

SIX DANCE ON; MAY STOP IT

nounced District Attorney Gardner. "We may not stop the dance, but the promoters will be charged with violating the 'blue laws" of 1874 and will be arraigned on Monday. Should the dance be staged on a boat, that is a matter for the Federal authorities, and there are no Federal Sunday laws."

The county prosecutor was not clear on the number of persons to be arrested, in the event of a law violation, but he was positive 'hat the promoters would be held.

Sheriff R. H. Braun, chief law enforcement officer, declared today the Sunday regulations must be adhered to throughout the county.

"Although this is really a matter for the district attorney," he said when asked what the county would do in case the dancers were taken to a country club after midnight, "I think it should be stopped. It has gone long enough."

As the Sunday closing laws cover the entire state the troubles of the promoters run even outside of the county.

The rivers, however, offer a solution. They are under the supervision of the United States government and there U. S. Attorney John D. Meyer said the Sunday laws do not apply.

Inquiry as to the attitude of the authorities followed the announcement this morning by Crandall that he would move the dancers on trucks to a showboat or nearby country club over Sunday if it became necessary and take them back to Motor Square Garden Monday.

"The law," he said, "will not be violated."

SIX DANCE ON

Through a wearying night three couples, favorites from the start, moved slowly about fancy capers and stunts forgotten. They were Albert Bonach, champion, and a son of the "Strip," and Cora Dean, Homestead belle; Marianne Jacque, 97-pound co-champion, and Eddie Leonard, East End plasterer; Tony Phillips, barber of the Hill, and Teeny Neiman, Amerita Club favorites—sole survivors of the 102 boys and girls who started last Monday.

Last night's and today's early hours were like their predecessors except that there was less byplay from the candidates. A crowd of 3,000 remained past dawn.

Last night the curiosity of Pittsburgh was so aroused that, after 12,000 persons had jammed the Garden, the doors were closed for 90 minutes. Hundreds stood outside pelted by rain and snow, standing on slush-covered pavements. And they stood until there was room inside for them.

The only outward sign of weakness shown by any of the dancers was a nose hemorrhage suffered by Eddie Leonard early today. He rallied, however, and announced that "Now I'm in it to stay."

SNOW BLOCKS ROADS

were jammed in the roadway. At Rocky Ridge in Bethel township heavy trucks ditched during the night blocked the McMurray road and these are said to be covered by drifts and passenger cars, attempting to pass, were marooned at the roadside.

BUSSES DELAYED

The White Star bus lines, operating between Pittsburgh and Washington and the Yelloway line to Dayton, O., were delayed while trying to make wide detours. The bus for Washington leaving Pittsburgh at 6:30 o'clock this morning ran into the jam at Rocky Ridge and attempting to detour was caught behind the traffic jam south of Bridgeville. Through service is carried on to Clifton. While the storm continues there is little hope of opening these roads. All the country roads are closed.

WIRES DOWN

Every available "trouble" man was called out by the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Duquesne Light Company to cope with the storm which threatened paralysis of traffic and power transmission. Sleet formed on wires, menacing operation of trolleys and interfering with the current carriers. "We don't know what may develop," said an official of the light company.

Pittsburgh was cut off from telephone communication with Johnstown, Bedford, Bradford, Kittanning and other points.

Pennsylvania Railroad trains were late from 20 minutes to an hour and a half from points east, dispatchers reported. Baltimore and Ohio officials reported trains from the east late. Much of the delay on both railroads was due to signal lines being down. Interurban trolley service was hampered.

Sleet on power wires resulted in lights flickering in office buildings and homes, due to interruption in current flow.

"The storm likely will continue this afternoon and tonight," said Forecaster Brotzman, "but by tomorrow skies should clear and warmer weather set in. Clear weather was reported today west of Columbus, O."

Covered with snow, the body of Mrs. Dora Sturn, 50, of 1523 Fifth avenue, was found at 7:30 a. m. today in a private alley at 1427 Our way. She had been dead several hours.

Occupants of houses in the vicinity reported to police they had heard the woman talking incoherently during the night, but paid no attention to her.

Bernard Hildebrand, of 113 Ruch street, en route to work, found the body and notified police. There were no marks of violence.

A bus carrying passengers and mail from Ohiopyle to Uniontown was stranded at Stonehouse hill on the National highway.

RIGHT TO SIT AT STAKE

An opinion as to whether or not County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong can legally supervise the work of the return board canvassing the result of last Tuesday's primary election is expected to be handed down in Common Pleas Court today.

Armstrong's right to sit on the return board is being questioned by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, on the ground that the primary election act of 1913 prohibits a candidate for office from participating in an election. Armstrong was a candidate for state committeeman for the Thirty-eighth Senatorial District.

A petition asking the court to restrain Commissioner Armstrong from directing the work of the return board was presented in court yesterday and Judges James H. Gray and Richard W. Martin indicated they would hand down their opinion today.

The return board yesterday completed 18 city districts in the First and Second Wards and 16 McKeesport districts.

MADDEN'S BODY TO LIE IN STATE

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP.)—Martin B. Madden of Illinois, one of the Republican leaders in Congress and a power in the House of Representatives, was stricken with an acute heart attack yesterday and died a few minutes later.

The end came as he sat at his desk in his capitol office, talking with a colleague. He suddenly placed his hand over his heart and sank down in his chair. He was removed to a couch in the room and despite efforts to revive him he passed away without regaining consciousness.

Representative Sproul, an Illinois colleague, with whom he had been talking and a few other friends were with Madden when he died.

HOUSE ADJOURNS

Word of Mr. Madden's death spread rapidly about the House and within a few minutes the House, in whose stormy legislative battles he had participated for 23 years, adjourned out of respect for the "chief" as he was called by many of his friends.

There was silence in the chamber as the announcement was made and members seemed stunned at the news that the white-haired chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, for whom all had deep admiration and respect, had passed from their ranks.

Mr. Madden was 73 years of age and was serving his twelfth continuous term as a representative from the First Chicago Congressional District. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Paul Henderson, wife of a former assistant postmaster general.

Mr. Madden's body was taken to his Washington home where it will remain until Sunday. Then it will be brought back to the capitol to lie in state between the hours of noon and 2 p. m. in the chamber of the House. It will be placed on a train for Chicago, where on Monday afternoon funeral services will be held at his home at Hinsdale, a Chicago suburb.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., April 28.—Just flew in here in a new Ryan monoplane against a terrific head wind with Pilot Livingstone.

WILL ROGERS.

Talk about meeting great people—I had breakfast in Des Moines with "Ding," the great political cartoonist. He won't leave Des Moines. That's where he gets all those wonderful rube ideas.

The streets are packed here today with farmers' automobiles waiting for relief.

This is the home of Quaker Oats and the Cherry Sisters. I am going out to see the sisters. They were really the inspiration of me going on the stage.

Tomorrow, Topeka, the home of Charley Curtis, and he would make a great president.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

R. R. WORKER KILLED FIGHTING POLICEMAN

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 28.—(AP.)—Seriously wounded by a city patrolman yesterday when he resisted arrest, Leslie I. Foland, 27, died in a hospital here. Foland and Merrit F. Meck, 26, Penbrook, had forced their way into a house at 1402 Penn street, according to police. The patrolman, Glenn Allison, off duty and on his way home, responded to cries of help from another officer who had been knocked to the ground by the pair. Foland was assistant baggagemaster at the Reading station here.

American stocks and bonds are the world's premier investment securities, according to Henry R. Hayes, New York, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America and honor guest at a dinner given by the local group of the association in the Duquesne Club. Mr. Hayes was accompanied here by Alden H. Little and Samuel O. Rice, Chicago. George G. Applegate is chairman of the Pittsburgh group.

HIGH COURT GETS BURIAL CONTEST

Another round in the legal battle to decide who shall conduct the funeral of Miss Catherine Boyle is scheduled for Superior Court here today. The Rev. Law A. O'Connell, her executor, pastor of Epiphany Church, and W. A. Dunn, of 1728 Fifth avenue, undertaker and friend of the Boyle family, are the litigants.

Unable to agree on a time and place, each seeks to bury the body.

Yesterday Judge James H. Gray signed an order restraining Undertaker Dunn from interfering with the burial and refused to grant an appeal to Superior Court.

Undismayed, Dunn's attorney expressed the intention of going directly to Superior Court with his appeal.

In the meantime Dunn has possession of the body and is making funeral arrangements.

LONG WORKHOUSE TERM GIVEN YOUNG ROBBER, 19

Hosea Higeley, 19, of Ferry street, was committed to the workhouse for three to six years by Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court yesterday after being convicted on three charges of robbery and a charge of entering a building. He was a companion of Daniel Sipes, 17, of Leetsdale, who was committed to the Huntingdon reformatory on pleas to the same charges and testified against Higeley.

WEDS RANCHER

KATHERINE M'DONALD

Katherine McDonald, former film actress, has married Christian R. Holes, Montecito, Cal., nephew of Max Fleischmann, yeast manufacturer. As Mrs. Holes, the former screen star will be mistress of the Featherhill ranch, the zoo of which is one of California's show places.

HOME IS LOOTED OF CLOTHING

Forcing open a door of the apartment of Thomas Brown, second floor, 718 Junilla street, last night, a thief entered and stole wearing apparel valued at almost $100. The loot comprised an overcoat, a dress and a pair of shoes.

A fountain pen, a necklace and a watch of a total value of about $15, were stolen by a sneak thief from the home of George Anderson, 1223 Reddour street, city detectives were informed last night. Entrance was made through a front door which had been left unlocked.

WED ONLY DAY, WIVES SUE

Two short-lived marriages were revealed in divorce court yesterday.

Mable Warr, 1123 Maple avenue, Wilkinsburg, filed suit against Harry E. Warr, 315 North Beatty street, saying they had been married New Year's Day, 1925, and that her husband deserted her the same day.

Edna M. Cassells, 8 Brightridge street sued Thomas W. Cassells, 1105 Sherman avenue, saying she had been married May 18, 1925, and deserted the following day.

DAD CAUSES SUIT

LILA LEE

A blank promissory note signed by Lila Lee and later filled in by her father, Carl Appel, formerly her guardian, is the cause of a law suit against her by John Corgiat, Oakland (Cal.), who bought the $2,500 note, he says, innocently. Under age when it was signed, she says.

POLES IN MYSTERY FLIGHT

International News Service.

PARIS, April 28.—The Polish aviators, Major Louis Isikowsky and Major Casimir Kapula, hopped off from Le Bourget Airdrome at 5 a. m. today, ostensibly on a test flight preparatory to their contemplated transatlantic flight, but they left a humming buzz of humor behind them.

The official announcement made at the start stated that the fliers were leaving on a 24 trial flight along the French coast.

But when their powerfully motored machine gracefully swept upward into the sky, it was loaded with a fuel supply calculated to carry the fliers across the Atlantic. Furthermore the weather all along the Southern route which the fliers had announced they eventually would take, was reported as perfect.

These two factors gave rise to much-credited rumors that the Poles were headed for the Azores on the first leg of their trans-Atlantic flight.

Their plane is powered by a 650 horse-power motor and is said to be capable of a non-stop flight of 5,000 miles.

1 Drowns In Boat Panic

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 28.—One man is believed today to have been drowned in one of the strangest accidents in local waters—the partial submerging of the municipal ferryboat Bronx in New York Bay.

A cry of "man overboard" caused scores of the 2,800 passengers to rush to the bow of the boat, tilting the fore part of the vessel. A heavy wave swept over the bow, washing three men overboard. Two were rescued, but the third disappeared.

Following the ferryboat's nose dive, water swept down the lower deck and five persons were injured. Women became panic-stricken and a man in the first car of a line of automobiles started his machine, knocking down three passengers.

The cry of "man overboard" arose when a report spread that a passenger had jumped over the side of the vessel. Nearby tugs rescued two of the men swept overboard in the ensuing excitement.

Reformer Reports Wine in Cellar of Ex-Pastor

TOWANDA, Pa., April 28.—(AP.)—Walter J. Bell, field secretary of the Bradford County Law Enforcement League, reported today that he had raided the home of the Rev. Oliver P. Teel, retired minister, in Springfield township, Susquehanna county, and that he had found a quantity of wine in the cellar. Mr. Teel waived a hearing before a justice of the peace and was held for court under $1,000 bond.

LIKEN MAY DINNER TO ROYALTY'S

PARIS, April 28.—(AP.)—The dinner party for which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alfred May had brought 64 guests from their home city of Pittsburgh, Pa., to celebrate the silver anniversary of their wedding was held last night in the restaurant place L'Opera, owned by another Pittsburgher, Lee H. Weiler.

Weiler said that he "used to know Walter May when he didn't have enough money to buy a meal," but last night the entertainment provided by the 55-year-old owner of a string of drug stores reached a climax which placed it on a par with the munificence of the expensive pre-war times when Russian grand dukes and Indian potentates toured Paris letting gold coins fall where they might.

The lowest estimate which has been heard of the cost of bringing to France and entertaining the wedding party which saw the Mays united on April 27, 1903, is $100,000. The menu of last night's banquet was worthy of the day of Louis XIV and for those who chose there were wines bottled before Pittsburgh had been chartered as a city.

Not only had May enabled each of his guests to chat with home folks by telephone during the festivities, but his constant attention to detail was shown in the provision of instruments of the American type so that no one would lose a second of their expensive two-minute trans-Atlantic talk through wrestling with the "queer" French design.

The dinner closed with the singing of songs, some composed on the wedding day of the Mays and others written in celebration of anniversaries.

JUDGE EVANS

Judge John A. Evans, dean of Pennsylvania judges in point of service, was honor guest at a dinner given in the Duquesne Club by the Allegheny County Bar Association. Speakers were Joseph Stadtfeld, president, who served as toastmaster; Judge Thomas P. Trimble, Orphans Court, and William Watson Smith.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Ibsen's "Enemy of the People" Finely Presented by Hampden Proves To Be Mirthful Comedy

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GEORGE SEIBEL

WALTER HAMPDEN scored another artistic triumph at the Alvin Theater last night with Henrik Ibsen's satiric comedy, "An Enemy of the People," in which that grim old viking hammers the cowardice of conventional society. Probably few of the audience suspected there was so much hilarious humor in this play, a plea for free speech and a free press against the financial and official interests that try to hush up the truth because the lie is good for business.

Ibsen wrote the drama in his rage after he had been attacked for writing "Ghosts," and uncovering the moral scores of respectability. His Doctor Stockmann is attacked in the same way for exposing the pollution of the baths on which the town depends for its prosperity. The paper that boasted of its liberalism will not print his article; the organizations that promised support desert him; he is denounced by his fellow citizens as an enemy of the people—all for telling the unpleasant truth that interferes with their profits and will raise their taxes. A savage satire which hypocrites will not like and liars may condemn for its lack of moderation.

Hampden's portrayal of Stockmann was superb. He shows himself a character comedian of rare gifts. He plays the part as an idealist with a sense of humor, who gradually realizes that the joke is on him and through that realization turns it on his opponents. Nothing more skillful than his long speech in the fourth act has been given here in a long time—and no better mob scene could be imagined than this same act, a masterpiece of stage management.

Every member of the company excelled in some living characterization—W. H. Sams as the irascible and shrewd old tanner, Cecil Yapp as the smooth and oily Aslaksen, Ernest Rowan as the bluff and honest captain, Dallas Anderson as the two-faced editor, Stanley Howlett as the sneaking reporter, F. J. Kelly as the drunken man, and Norman Hammond as the overbearing burgomaster. Mabel Moore was the wife and Maria Adels the daughter—both playing with fine sincerity; while the two sons were acted with boyish naturalness by Leroy Wade and Omar LeGant.

By this time the attentive reader will suspect that it was a fine performance. It was! Admirably staged, admirably acted, this powerful plea for right against might, for the individual against the "compact majority," won new laurels for Hampden and showed the audience a new Ibsen. It is things like this that restore the great traditions of our theater, when its springs are poisoned with piffle and hokum.

RUSSIAN SHOW IN BILLS

Balieff's "Chauve Souris" opens Monday in the Alvin. "The March of the Wooden Soldiers" will be a feature of the program as heretofore and the 19 numbers introduced by Balieff, will include the most popular presentations of his various London, Paris and Berlin programs. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Opening Monday matinee, the fourth week of "Wings" will begin in the Nixon Theater. At the matinees of the first five days a souvenir photograph of Charles Rogers, autographed, will be given to every woman in attendance.

When "Knick Knacks" opens Monday in Loew's Penn, Pittsburghers will be given their first glimpse of Ted Joyce, who comes to act as master of ceremonies and take part in the Penn's stage shows. Joyce, from the Capitol Theater, New York, with Don Albert, will form a new musical combination. Mr. Albert will devote himself henceforth to the exclusive direction of the orchestra.

"Tommy," the George Sharp Players' offering in the Pitt next week is a comedy of an American family. The authors, Howard Lindsay and Bert Robinson, have succeeded in drawing a set of characters that ar true to life.

"Almost Human," the photoplay in which Vera Reynolds and Kenneth Thomson will be seen in the Davis next week, is based on "The Bar Sinister," by Richard Harding Davis.

"In Bermuda" Stanley stage feature next week has five acts and a large chorus. The photoplay offering will be Pola Negri in "Three Sinners."

The life of newspapermen and the workings of a big metropolitan newspaper form the basis of the story of "Let 'er Go Gallagher!" next week's feature picture in Loew's Aldine. There also will be vaudeville.

A film version of a Jack London novel comes to the Grand next week. It is "Burning Daylight," a story of the stirring god rush period in Alaska. Milton Sills has the starring role.

Adele Nelson and her baby elephants will be the stage attraction in the Harris next week. On the screen will be Tom Mix in "Horseman of the Plains."

"Princess Pat," Hollywood movie lion, will be a stage feature in the Sheridan Square the first half of next week. Screen features will be Vera Reynolds in "Almost Human" and William Boyd in "The Night Flyer."

"Longetta," a Grecian dancer, will be seen in the Academy next week in "Night Life in Paris."

ext week, Esther Ralston's lat'e-B

Next week Esther Ralston's latest starring vehicle, "Something Always Happens," is to be presented in the Olympic.

FREE ORGAN RECITAL SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Dr. Caspar Koch, city organist, will be heard in the regular free organ recital to be given in Carnegie Hall, North Side, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. May Johns Evans, Welsh soprano, will be the guest soloist and Ethel Goldsmith will play the accompaniment. The program includes: Prelude, bridal music and introduction to third act from "Lohengrin," Wagner; soprano solo, "The Song," Chaffin; gavot, from "Mignon," Thomas; "Ave Maria," Arkadelt-Liszt; soprano solos, "Arise O Sun," Day; "Trusting Eyes," Gartner; toccata from Fifth Symphony, Widor.

Kennywood Park Now Open for Week Ends

Four hundred couples dancing to the rhythm of Kennywood's peppy orchestra inaugurated the local open air terpsichorean season last Saturday evening. Tonight the second affair will be conducted. Marty Gregor's greater orchestra has been selected to play. Lieut. Y. J. Vastine and his Westinghouse Band will play concerts afternoon and evening tomorrow.

Kiddieland, haven of Kennywood's tiny patrons, is to be enlarged with the addition of a Brownie roller coaster. Now totaling nine amusements, the miniature amusement park is very complete. The midget coaster with mild dips and twists also offers amusement to kiddies.

Until May 17 Kennywood will be open on weekends only. Saturday evening there will be dancing while on Sunday amusements and the usual concerts are conducted.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENTS ON SOCIAL EVENTS

Pittsburghers Plan European Tours

HEADS AMARANTH

MRS. ELIZABETH F. SHORE

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Shore has just been elected and installed as grand royal matron, Grand Court of Pennsylvania, Order of the Amaranth, at a meeting in York.

THERE is a certain vicarious pleasure in telling about other folks' good times, and today, it seems, most of the news centers around the comings and goings of a number of local people. Apparently Europe is attracting an unusually large group of Pittsburghers this year, and even as early as this a few are leaving to spend the entire summer abroad.

I understand, too, that their Sewickley friends will not have a glimpse of the James D. Rhodes family until next fall, since they are going direct to their summer home at Alder Creek, in the Adirondacks, after they land from the Aquitania in New York. They are sailing today from Cherbourg. You remember, of course, that Mr. Rhodes and his daughters and son, Mary, Melus and Thomas, together with the latters' aunt, Miss Rhondda Edwards, took a trip around the world and that Mrs. Rhodes joined them in Europe after the wedding of their other daughter, Elizabeth and George A. C. Harder in New York.

Another traveler is Miss Margaret Crutchfield, daughter of the James S. Crutchfields, of Sewickley. She arrived in New York yesterday from Egypt after going abroad about six weeks ago to attend the International Missionary Council in Jerusalem. Mrs. Crutchfield went on to New York Wednesday night to meet her daughter and they are coming back home today. And Mrs. John B. Booth and her daughter, Marguerite, also landed in Gotham yesterday. They enjoyed a Mediterranean cruise and later spent a month in Spain. Alexander Cochran Robinson, Jr., is back home, too. He had a most interesting trip, I hear, motoring with friends from New York and Philadelphia through northern Africa.

DORMONT CLUB GIVES UNUSUAL PROGRAM

In some of its features the annual luncheon of the Dormont New Century Club, which was held yesterday in Kaufmann's, was one of the most unusual affairs the club has ever had. Covers were laid for nearly 150 and the program was given during the many courses.

Mrs. Frank B. Saunders, retiring president, was honor guest and was presented with an exceptionally beautiful beaded bag. Mrs. J. W. Young, Jr., presided over the program in an original manner, introducing the heads of the four departments and the president of the junior section, each of whom contributed to the afternoon's entertainment. Starting the ball rolling, the music department, under Mrs. J. G. Moorhead, gave a minuet danced in costume by Mrs. Svend Canarris and Mrs. P. R. Scheuneman, to piano and violin music by Mrs. H. G. Ewens and Mrs. Donald P. Maxwell. A vocal trio composed of Mrs. J. Trautman, Mrs. H. F. Hanks and Mrs. H. E. Heineman gave two numbers and Mrs. Hanks sang contralto solos.

Mrs. Ross E. Taggart's literary department's contribution was a humorous debate between Mrs. E. E. Houghtelin and Mrs. L. P. Ulrich on "Resolved: That the Novels of Today Are More Enjoyable Than Those We Read Twenty Years Ago." The juniors, through their president, Mrs. N. A. Jones, presented Mrs. H. G. Shrewsbury, who gave excerpts from Edward Sheldon's play, "Romance."

The home economics department, of which Mrs. H. H. Raessle is chairman, stepped out of its usual field in introducing Miss Josephine Miller, who gave a spring fashion talk with a model displaying some of the new modes. And 11 members of the drama department gave a playlet under the direction of their chairman, Mrs. W. A. Young. Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs, introduced by Mrs. Saunders, gave a charming and apt little talk.

Mrs. William T. Kerr, president-elect of the Carnegie Woman's Club, having resigned, Mrs. H. R. Bigham automatically becomes president and Mrs. W. C. C. Johnston takes her place as first vice president. At yesterday's meeting Mrs. J. W. Gilbert was chosen second vice president. It was drama day with the club and was held in the Presbyterian Church with the reading of two one-act plays constituting the program. Mrs. Charles Sinsell read "Mrs. Pat and the Law" and Mrs. Floyd Wallace "The Futurist." Baritone solos were offered by Ernest Schultz, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Andrews, and Miss Helen Manion contributed piano numbers. Mrs. Ralph Hoffman was hostess and Mrs. T. L. Cottom, leader.

Mrs. George K. Angle, of Albuquerque, N. M., a former state regent of the D. A. R. in New Mexico, was a guest of the Pittsburgh chapter at its special meeting in the Hotel Schenley yesterday. Mrs. John Brown Heron, vice president of the national society and a former regent of the Pittsburgh chapter, was also a guest. Mrs. James E. Umbstaetter, Mrs. Verner S. Gaggin, Mrs. Robert E. Reineman, Mrs. Cooke Bausman, Miss Lydia Fleming, Mrs. Galen C. Hartman and Mrs. H. C. McEldowney, delegates to the thirty-seventh Continental Congress in Washington, gave their reports and Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, chapter regent, spoke of other points of interest in the sessions. Delegates were appointed to the thirty-second state conference.

Avoid the Wrecker, Jealousy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DICK was proposing to Marceline. They were speeding smoothly along over white ribbons of highway in Dick's roadster. The weather was April at her most enchanting. The scene—well, scenery—flew by so swiftly that it was a blur of orchards, bursting into pink bloom, and landscapes of the delicate green only seen in very early spring.

Marceline snuggled down under her soft robe and sniffed eagerly at the cool, perfumed air. She was happy. She felt in a romantic mood.

It was sweet to know that Dicky cared. She pondered as to whether she should accept this, his fifth proposal in as many days.

MARCELINE was fond of Dicky. And because she was a young widow of 24 she assured herself she would not expect the impossible of marriage.

Comradeship, security, dear affection, willingness to overlook inevitable faults and failings—

"We will go wherever you want to go, darling—to Europe, South America, Africa, for our honeymoon," Dicky was day-dreaming. "And Irene—"

"Yes, Irene," interrupted Marceline, suddenly alert at the mention of her little daughter.

"Irene will, of course, be kept at a good boarding school."

"Away from me?" Marceline questioned incredulously. The thought of separation from Irene was not to be taken seriously.

"Of course! She will have every advantage! I don't want her with me, Marceline," he pleaded. "I can't share you with anyone—not even Irene."

AT that moment, Marceline knew she would never marry Dick. For she realized that he, like the man who had been her husband, was a slave of jealousy. He would hate her baby because she adored it.

Suddenly Marceline breathed a deep sigh of relief because this revelation of Dick's jealousy had come in time—before she married him.

The five years before her husband's death had seemed to her a nightmare. He had questioned her every glance and smile.

A bit of gay and meaningless flattery addressed to her, a friendly chat with any man of her acquaintance, inevitably led to scenes at home. Yet she had loved her husband when she married him, until his jealousy made her home life so hideous that affection could not survive there.

CAN love exist without jealousy? is a question I am sometimes asked.

The real question is: Can love exist with jealousy? And the answer is an emphatic "No!"

Love and jealousy cannot exist together because they are direct opposites and each destroys the other. When jealousy makes its appearance you will have to banish it or love will soon lie dead. You can uproot jealousy if your love is strong, fine and wise enough, because the stronger of the two qualities is bound to prevail.

Love includes trust, but jealousy never trusts—it always fears being displaced by a rival. Love admires and appreciates, while jealousy is suspicious and reproachful, ready to believe the worst of the one it claims to love. Jealousy cannot enjoy the happiness of today, fearing it may not last. Nor is it willing to let the object of its jealousy be happy or free from reproach.

LOVE desires above all else the happiness and welfare of the loved one, whereas jealousy thinks only of itself and its own desire for absolute possession. Naturally this emotion, the direct opposite of love in its nature, brings failure and unhappiness.

"Where are you going?"

"Where were you last night?"

"What! You are going to play golf again this Saturday?"

"Who was the girl you were with?"

These questions may be asked with smiling lips by a sweetheart, fiancee or wife, but if jealousy is the motive it betrays itself in stormy, anxious, reproachful eyes.

A man of whom such questions are asked constantly soon begins to feel stifled. He is no longer a free soul. He feels that he is kept on a leash. He may not want to roam, but he resents being watched and suspected.

A JEALOUS woman is even resentful of a man's business because it takes his mind off her. She is jealous of his club, because it keeps him away from her—of his cronies, his books, his mother and sisters. In her desire to keep him bound to her closer and closer, to absorb every corner of his heart and thoughts, she strains harder and harder at the tie that binds him to her until finally it snaps.

As nearly as I can figure out, a large proportion of failures in love and marriage can be attributed directly to jealousy and her twin, envy. An envious woman cannot be happy while a friend possesses a rug, a hat, a house, car or husband she considers superior to her own. In other words she is never happy and seldom agreeable.

The girl free from jealousy usually wins out, for she has confidence in herself and faith in others, which is the secret of "It" or charm.

If love makes marriages, jealousy wrecks them. Do not let jealousy wreck your romance. Drive out the green-eyed monster by cultivating a truer sense of love, with more faith, appreciation and joy, then jealousy cannot hurt the adoring affection between you and your man!

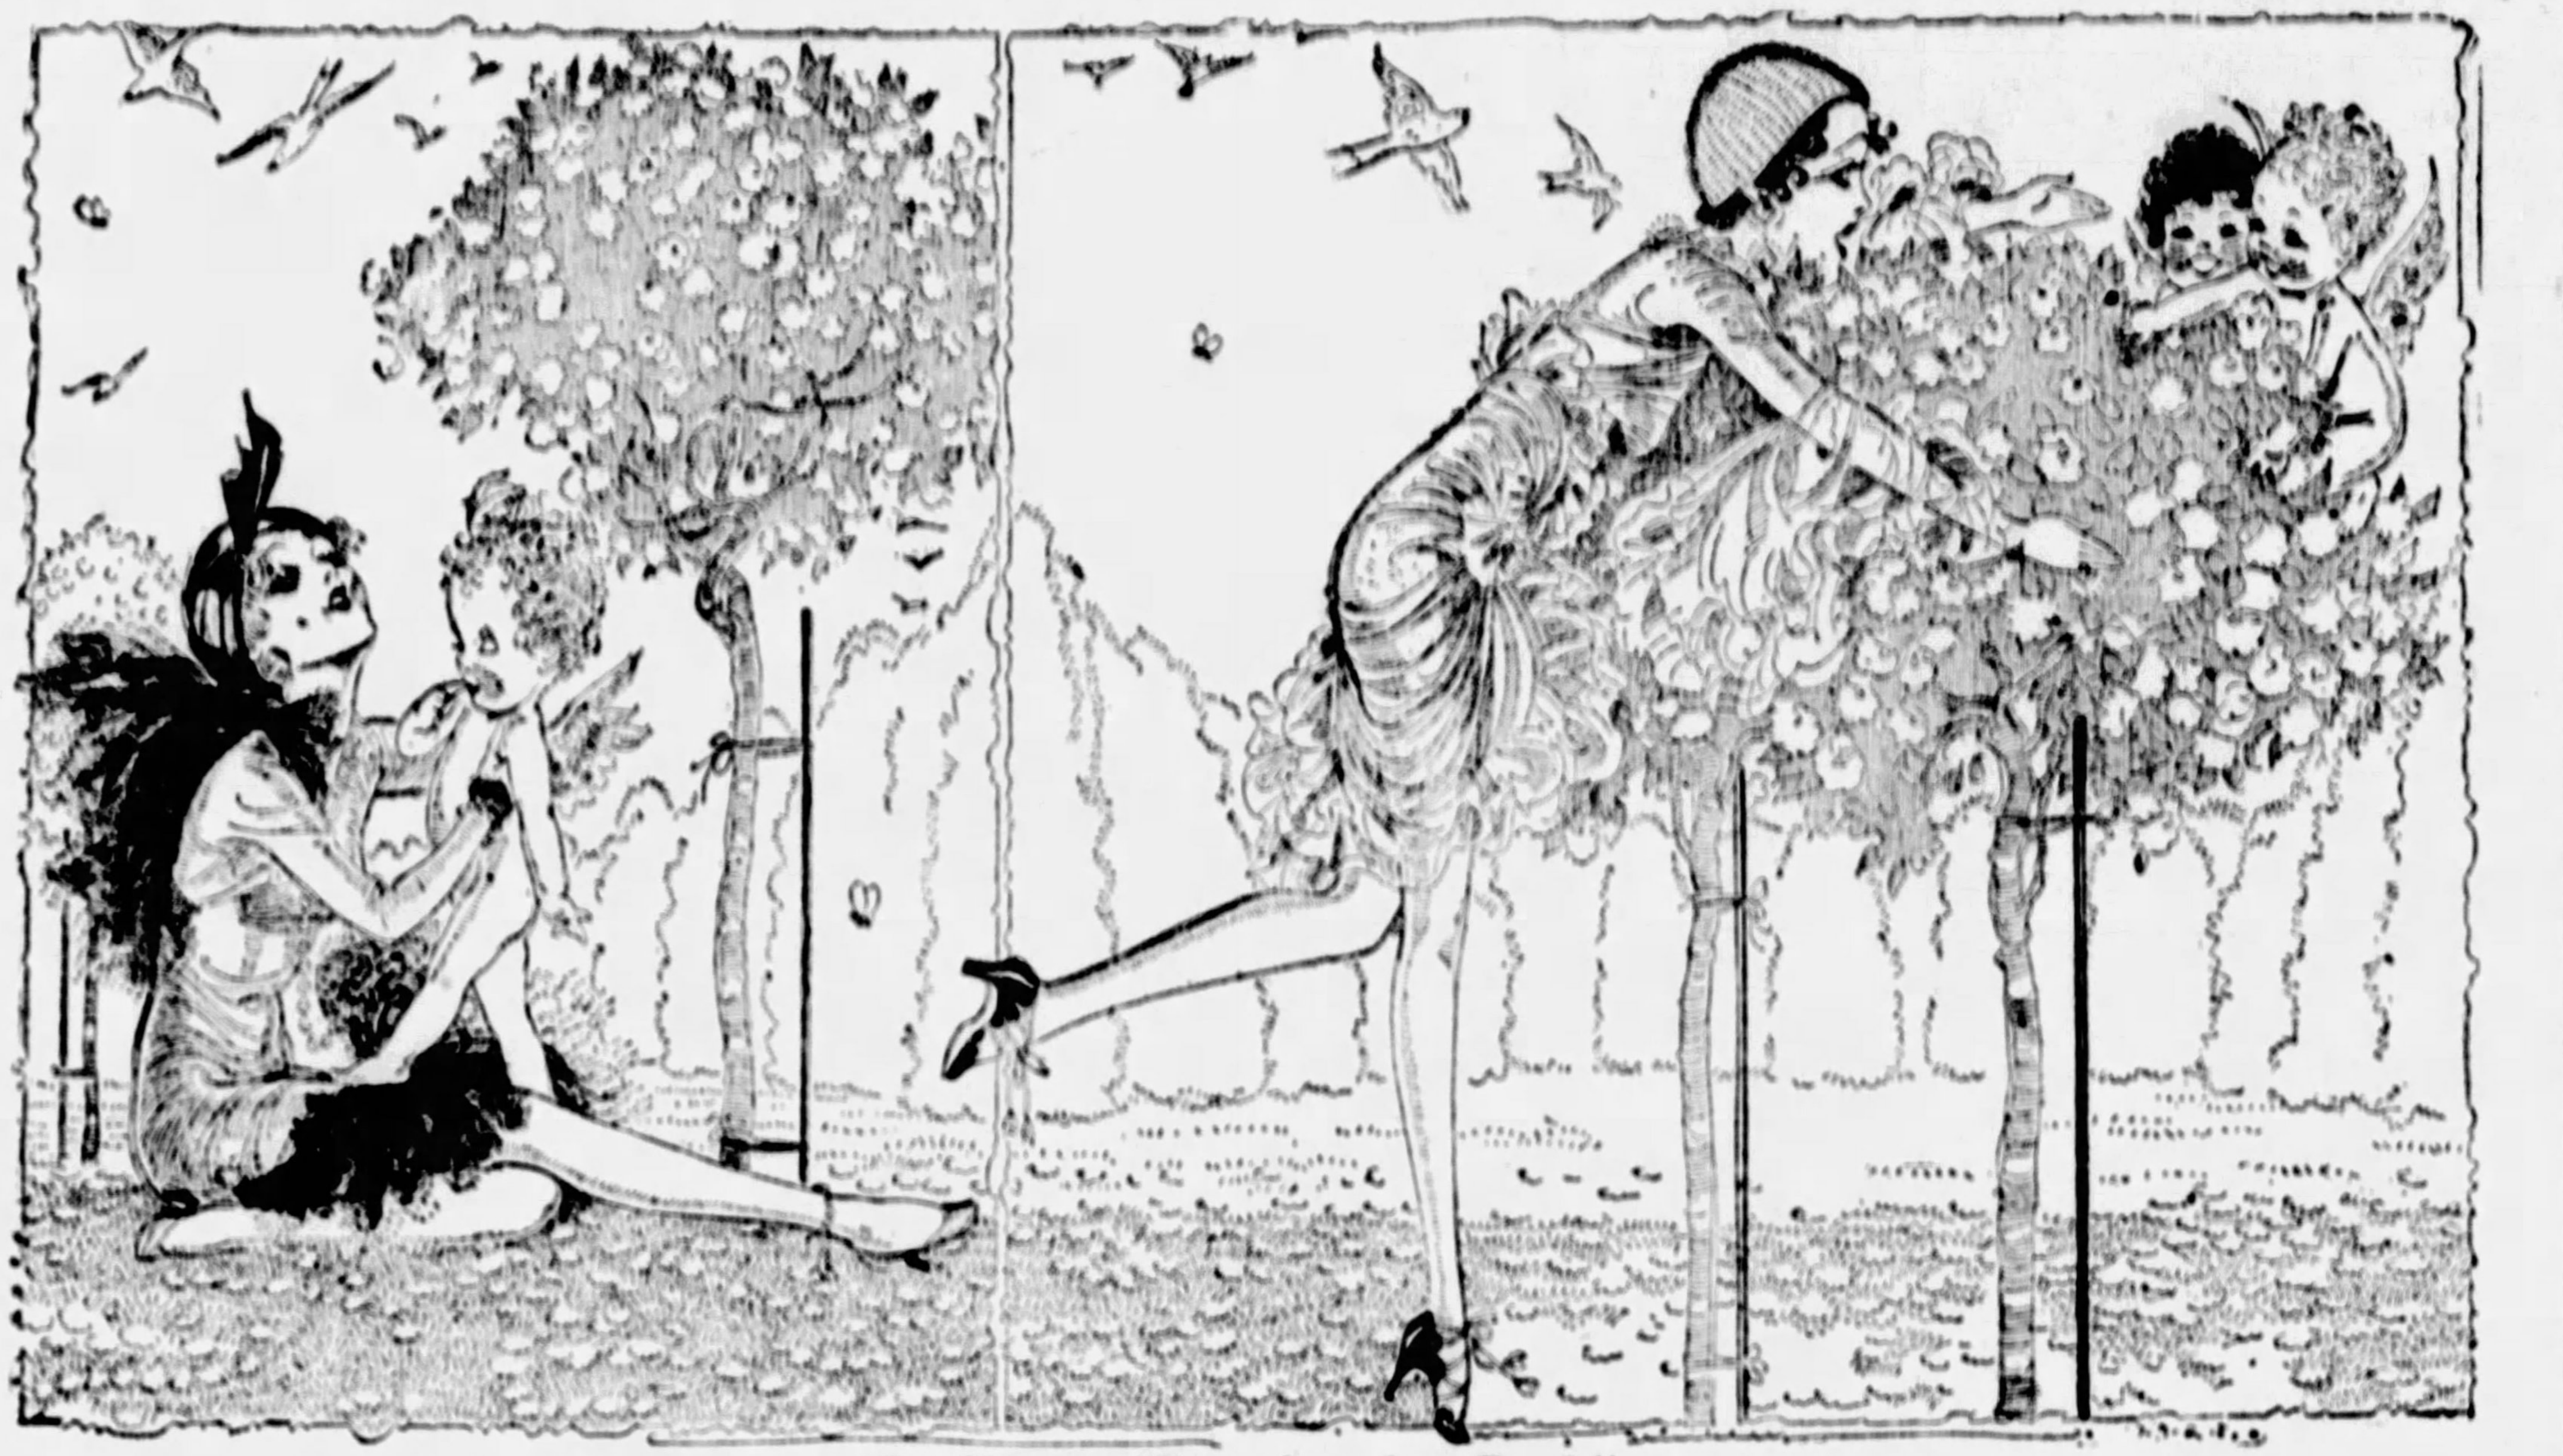
"A BIRD IN THE HAND"

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley



"Is Worth Two in the Bush"

THIS is not meant to be actually true, of course, as YOU know. NO little feathered, live music-box, that quaint creature with the frail body and the Praise God voice that we call by the delightful name of "bird" is better in your hand—and from there to a cage—than are two in a bush! No real bird is better so. And we ourselves are not made rich with him a captive. We are the most downright rich in beauty and we own him all the tighter when he is a-sittin' on a limb of a tree, whistling, "Chee-r-r-r-RUP!" That's when a bird is worth most—in a tree!

But not so—LOVE. Not Cupidon. That feathered, chubby baby-god is worth one of him—in your hand and heart—a million of his brothers flitting around loose in the bushes. You see, the free ones are many times the loves of others out on an airing, that you think are better than any you can get with the coaxing. Many times they are idle-dreams of loves, while the one at hand is a dear reality.

Gloriette sighs and struggles and reaches after a love that she thinks would be "just wonderful" and overlooks a humbler, soberer-winged one that flutters half-tamely, willingly, at her white hand. She pursues what truly is a "wild love," that stylistic, over-intense, posed love that preens and glibs its way precociously through some modern short stories. And overlooks Venus' son, the real little gilded, rosy person himself, Eros in the flesh, tapping at her heart; if she knew it—a really "wonderful love!"

Yes, indeed, and you betcha, one of these in the hand, a humble one and with little money and high ambitions, is worth a flock of frivolous ones, joy-bent alone, in the bushes!

Dreams are lovely things and they bring reality if you can dream without loafing; but one dream comes true, one accomplishment, is worth whole droves of talkative dreams!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHEN WOMAN IS MOST CHARMING

MY Daughter, WHEN is a woman most charming in the eyes of men?

Behold, she is most desirable to any man, when she ceaseth her endeavors to be charming!

When she is cheerful at his coming, and not cast down at his going. When she exerteth not herself to entertain him, nor to impress him, and seeketh not to ensnare him.

HELEN ROWLAND

When she ceaseth to doll up for his delight, and taketh no heed concerning whether her nose be powdered nor her lips be reddened, nor her locks marcelled, at the sound of his approach.

When she ceaseth to harken for his ring upon the telephone and neglecteth to reproach him for forgetting his promises.

When his presence no longer thrilleth her, and she noteth not his absence, nor his staying away.

When she ceaseth to consult his tastes or to ask his opinions concerning her ways or her new hats or her friends.

When she receiveth his approval with a smile of acquiescence—and his disapproval with a shrug of indifference.

When she no longer lieth awake, wondering whose lips he may be kissing or into whose eyes he may be gazing.

When she doeth no "stunts" to arouse his jealousy and stageth no "scenes" to pique his interest.

When she ceaseth to worry over him, to cater to him, to keep tabs on him and to dream of him!

For lo, as a woman hangeth ornaments of silver and gold upon a Christmas tree, so doth she drape her illusions upon a man.

And not until these have fallen away, doth she see any man as he IS, and treat him as a human being.

Not until the star-dust hath fallen from her eyes, doth she perceive that a man preferreth common sense to incense, and comradeship to worship.

Therefore, is a woman always most desirable in a man's eyes, when she ceaseth to ADORE him, and beginneth to ENDURE him!

For then is she filled with naturalness and good humor and glorified with a mantle of sweet indifference.

Verily, verily, all that a man requireth of any woman is that she amuse him a little and let him ALONE!

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 29

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than material force, that thoughts rule the world.—EMERSON.

SUNDAY'S horoscope points to advantages for those in employment or for those seeking for favors or preferment from those in power. Also the personal contacts should be pleasant and profitable, but pure business had best be deferred.

Those whose birthday it is may promote their advantages by approaching employers and superiors for recognition and advancement. Women may be particularly favored or advanced by dealing with those in high places.

A child born on this day may have many pleasant and practical characteristics which should further its ambitions. It will make its best success, however, in the employment of others.

Notable Nativity: Matthew Vassar, founder of Vassar College.

Monday, April 30

Man, ignorant of the law of force doth send the storm upon its course.—MARY E. BEERS

Monday's astrological chart shows many storm signals. Stress, strife and violence may be the order of the day, nullifying all the possibilities of advantage and security against perils of various nature. Calm control and good judgment may save the day. Beware losses of property and means, as well as employment.

Those whose birthday it is are advised that violence, passion, contention and strife may, if indulged, negative all prospect of advantage. There are many hazards to employment, property and favor indicated, during the year, which may be nullified by firm control.

A child born on this day will need rigid training in all manner of self-control and restraint of speech and behavior, if success is to be wrung from adverse circumstances.

Notable Nativity: William H. Crane, actor.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

A Calm Mind the First Requisite to Sleep

NOT long ago I got to wondering about the number of possible explanations to account for sleep. On giving the matter study I found that at least six separate and distinct theories are seriously entertained. To explain the cause and nature of sleep, innumerable investigators have pursued the subject for years.

DR. COPELAND

Several of these theories are so absurd that they may be dismissed at once. Others are so fascinating that they hold our interest. For instance, one group of scientists advances the belief that during waking and working hours substances are formed in the body which have the power to control certain nerve cells. This may be a toxin—a poisonous substance—which is capable of producing sleep.

According to this theory the stage of sleep continues until the toxin has exhausted its effects. During the quiet period, no new toxins are developed, so we awaken refreshed and alert.

If one is kept awake long enough, the toxins accumulate and may become so poisonous, therefore, that life itself is in danger. Only sleep can effect a cure.

The best known and most readily accepted theory is that sleep is due to lessened blood supply to the brain. It seems pretty well established that during sleep there is a material reduction in the amount of blood going to the head.

Each of us has a certain fixed quantity of blood. Each of us has just so much space in the blood vessels. These blood vessels are elastic things, with muscular walls, under control of the nervous system. They may be made smaller in diameter, or larger, according to the action of the nerves.

If the blood vessels of one part of the body are contracted, that necessitates dilatation of the vessels elsewhere, and vice versa. This is an essential arrangement to furnish room for the fixed quantity of blood.

During sleep the blood vessels of the skin are dilated and a much larger amount of blood is accumulated here. Consequently a reduced quantity goes to the brain.

Just what causes the contraction of the brain vessels, at the beginning of sleep, must be explained. Perhaps this is where the toxin theory fits into the blood circulation theory.

Anyhow, knowing that lessened blood supply to the brain is essential to sleep, we can understand why we must be quiet, calm and undisturbed if we would woo sleep. To get excited, to drink stimulating beverages, to read highly interesting stories, to get into a tense frame of mind from any cause—all of these are fatal to sleep.

Sometimes the taking of a light lunch or a glass of hot milk, stimulating the blood vessels of the stomach and causing their dilation, will drain off enough blood to relieve the brain and induce sleep.

Beautiful Legs for All

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

BEAUTIFUL legs are the secret desire of every woman. Since skirts remain short this innermost yearning for beautiful legs must be made an actuality, as nothing so blasts an illusion of beauty as the careless exposure of parts of the body that are unbeautiful.

All "rising up on the balls of the feet then slowly lowering the heels to the floor again" exercises are splendid for limbering up the leg muscles, and this simple routine can be done whenever you think of it for several days. It is splendid also to work out the soreness that follows the using of leg muscles that are unaccustomed to this kind of work.

Stand erect with the shoulders back, the chest raised, the head up, the heels about three inches apart, the toes pointing straight ahead and the arms hanging relaxed at the sides. Stretch the torso to its full height and keep it pulled up in this way so that the abdomen is held in.

Balance the weight of the body on the heels, then slowly shift forward until the entire weight is balanced on the balls of the feet. Still moving slowly and under controlled or deliberate motion, raise the heels from the floor as far as you can without losing your balance. Hold this position while slowly counting to five, then lower the heels to the floor still under controlled motion. Repeat 10 times morning and night, and if possible go through the routine a few additional times during the day.

The next step is to walk around the room on the balls of the feet whenever you can do so without making yourself conspicuous. This latter exercise is good to strengthen a weakened arch condition as well as to develop shapely legs.

Next in order is "ankle reducing" and "calf limbering."

Sit well back on a chair and extend your right leg until it is on a horizontal line with the thigh, then, pointing the toes outward, rotate the foot 10 times to the left and 10 times to the right, keeping all of the action in the ankle and not bending the knee. Repeat with the left leg and ankle.

Now place on the floor a block of wood or a book that is at least 15 inches long, 12 inches wide and three inches thick. Then, keeping the heels on the floor and about three inches apart, rest the balls of the feet securely on the edge of the block and rise slowly to the toes. Still moving slowly, lower the heels to the floor again. Repeat 10 times. Now reverse the action by placing the heels on the block and letting the balls of the feet rest on the floor, slowly raising the balls of the feet from the floor until they are on an even line with the heels. Lower them slowly and repeat 10 times.

The third and last lap of this particular exercise is a combination of the other two movements in that the right heel is placed on the forward edge of the block. Raise the ball of the right foot to an even line with the heel while lowering the left heel to the floor. Then raise the left heel while lowering the ball of the right foot to the floor. Repeat 20 times.

Finish off the exercise by doing, once again, the rotating exercise described at the beginning of this article.

For the Lovelorn

Sis

DEAR MISS GALE:

I'm very anxious to receive some of your good advice that you give to others. I am 18, not bad looking, and a good dresser. I have been going with a fellow who I shall call Jack for seven months, but I am not in love with him. He is very jealous and will not allow me to go out with another fellow. Now, Miss Gale, please tell me how to make him see that he is doing wrong. He tells me and everyone knows that he is crazy about me, and he is really in earnest, so how can I keep him as a friend, but not a sweetheart without hurting his feelings? I am in love with another fellow, eight years my senior. Is he too old for me? The only fault he has is that he is not a good dresser. What shall I do about this? He seems to be pretty fond of me. I agree with you on all the questions. "SIS."

This boy has no right to dictate your friendships, and since you don't care for him, why permit him to do so? I am afraid you cannot expect to keep him for a friend if he is in love with you and you cannot return his affection. The other man is quite a lot older, but it might not be too much. Don't criticize his manner of dressing, but express admiration for well-pressed suits and attractive ties and this man may take the hint.

Unpopular

DEAR MISS GALE:

First, I want to compliment you on your wonderful advice. I am 15 years old and a sophomore in high school. I am not so awfully bad looking, but somehow the boys don't seem to pay any attention to me. Most of my girl friends go with boys and seem to be quite popular. There is a certain boy I like, who is a year or so my senior. I think, by his actions, that he likes me a little. One day he interfered with me in a way and we both sort of smiled. Do you think I should speak to him, or is it his place to speak first? UNPOPULAR.

There is no reason why you shouldn't speak to a school mate, my dear. But you are too young to be worrying about unpopularity. Wait for a couple of years before thinking so much about boys.

His Sweetheart

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am secretly engaged to a wonderful young man. He has a good name, comes from a good family, every one who meets him likes him, and he worships the ground I walk on. Naturally, some day I intend to marry him. He is 23 and I am 20. He has a good income, as he is a good worker, but my dad does not like him because he drives a truck, that being the only reason. I have a married sister who says he isn't good looking, and that I could get some one better. She is always making trouble for us. She thinks he should take me to dances and he doesn't believe in dancing, and I don't care for it much myself. Please tell me, don't you think this young man is good enough for any girl, as I will have to lie in the bed I make, and not my sister. I think my sister married the man she wanted and she should let me marry whom I want to, as I understand my friend better than she does. Therefore, I am, HIS SWEETHEART.

These do seem very superficial reasons for objecting to this young man. If he is all you think he is, I see no reason why you shouldn't marry him in a few years, if you still care for each other.

Hook and Peany

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two girls in our teens and have been constant readers of the lovelorn column, and think your advice is wonderful, therefore, we are coming to you for some advice. Miss Gale, this is my question: I (Hook) have been going with a fellow for about two years. I love him and he always seemed to think very much of me. But of late, Miss Gale, he one time talks as though he cares for me and another time as though he doesn't care for me at all. Should I keep going with him or drop off? I (Peany) have been going with a fellow for about eight months. After I had been going with him for about four months he tried to boss me. He is very jealous. He doesn't want me to talk to any other fellows besides himself. Miss Gale, this is my question: Should I not talk to any other fellows and do as he says, or quit going with him and talk to the rest of the fellows? HOOK AND PEANY.

If he is changing, you had better try to forget him, Hook. As for Peany's question, don't let this boy dictate to you about your friends.

How to Be Dainty as A Flower

By MARIA JERITZA

WITH the arrival of the first really warm days the problem of perspiration presents itself for practical consideration.

As the function of perspiration is the carrying off of body waste, you will do well to wear clothing that is easily laundered in Summer, including light-weight underwear of crepe, rayon or voile. Change your clothing every day. This makes more laundry, it is true, but underwear is easily washed and ironed when it is made simply without ruffling and tucks. Stockings also should be laundered each day.

Daily washing is better for clothing, because there is less need of hard rubbing when it is laundered so frequently. Cut underwear a little low under the arms if you perspire freely. You will find also that shaving under the arms helps to avoid odorous perspiration.

FREE use of sulphur soap or any other antiseptic soap in the daily warm tub should thoroughly cleanse the skin pores, removing all odor of perspiration. Or use your favorite soap, then add a handful of baking soda to your bath.

The daily bath should be neither hot nor cold, as both these extremes encourage perspiration, but just warm enough to be cleansing—say, from 92 to 95 degrees. By the way, this daily warm tub is essential to summertime daintiness.

If you are inclined to perspire freely, dry your body carefully after your bath, then dust it with a white cheesecloth bag about four inches square filled with baking soda and powdered starch in equal parts.

A sponge-off with eau de cologne or some pure toilet water is an equally good finishing touch to the bath. Sponging underneath your arms with toilet water several times a day with help keep the skin cool. Scented talcum powder is good for the same purpose. Drink an abundance of water and fruit juices.

IN summer only the lightest make-up should be used. For sports it is considered bad form to use any make-up except a dusting with powder.

Wear daytime frocks of tub silk, linen or cotton which can be washed easily. Sleeveless frocks for tennis and very short sleeves for home wear are advisable.

Every woman should be as dainty as a flower. This enchanting daintiness is possible for all and is based on antiseptic cleanliness, both internal and external.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Bert Munhall Aids Pirates Greatly by Restoring Injured Players to Fitness—Muldoon Says Sullivan Was Not Puncher—Thirty Games Postponed to Date and Magnates Lose $1,000,000.

Bert Munhall

WHEN summing up the factors that have caused the marked improvement in the all-around play of the Pittsburgh baseball club, don't overlook the fact that one of the greatest helps has been the splendid work done by Bert Munhall, athletic trainer at Carnegie Tech, whom Manager Donie Bush engaged for some special duty in treating the ills and injuries of the numerous players on the Pirate hospital list.

Munhall began to get results almost as soon as he started to work, and the remarkable success that he has attained in treating the Buccaneer cripples demonstrates more convincingly than ever what athletic followers hereabouts have known for a long time—that the Carnegie Tech expert is one of the very best men in the country at training and handling athletes and restoring them to fitness after injuries common to sport competition.

IN THE case of every injured Pirate entrusted to his care since he was first called in to help the Buccaneer cause, Munhall has brought speedy and lasting benefits.

He has treated Earl Smith, Johnny Miljus, Glenn Wright, Carmen Hill, Johnny Gooch, Pie Traynor and others for hurts of various natures, and it was his fine work that restored them all to top form so quickly.

There is no question that a large chunk of the credit for putting the Bucs back on the winning road belongs to the popular Tartan trainer. He knows his stuff thoroughly, and, after his fine success with the Pirates, the thought comes that the men who are selecting trainers and handlers for the American Olympic team would be only awarding due recognition to real merit if they were to give some consideration to the Pittsburger.

MANAGER DONIE BUSH is loud in his praise of Munhall's work on the crippled Corsairs. "Credit where credit is due," said the Pirate chief. "Munhall has helped out the club immeasurably. Some of our boys were rather seriously hurt and it looked as if they might be out of commission for a long time, but their injuries yielded rapidly to Bert's treatment. I have never known a baseball trainer to get better results in so short a time. Munhall's work has been more than gratifying and he has been of greater help to our team than any one on the outside could possibly conceive."

William Muldoon

DID you know that John L. Sullivan could not punch? Fistic fables have pictured the "Old Roman" as a destroyer whose terrific punch was the thing that made him champion, yet William Muldoon, New York boxing commissioner who was Sullivan's trainer in the old days, insists that John L. was not a puncher.

"Fans nowadays call any kind of a blow a punch," Muldoon is quoted. "That is wrong. A punch is a straight blow. Sullivan used a swing and a swing is not a punch.

"The hardest hitter in proportion to his weight, according to my observation, was Fitzsimmons. He had natural co-ordination or co-operation or whatever you want to call it. It was not alone his arms that supplied the power.

"Some fighters never acquire that. Harry Wills never did. He did his hitting with his arms. Another trouble with Wills was that too much of his height was carried between his knees and his ankles. Men with legs built like that cannot be fast."

THOUGH it is only a one-day jump that the Pirates are to make to Cincinnati tonight, Manager Bush will not be caught short of playing material. In addition to the seven regulars he will take five pitchers in Kremer, Miljus, Tauscher, Brame and Fussell, three catchers in Smith, Gooch and Hemsley, and five reserves in Scott, Mulligan, Barnhart, Bartell and Brickell, a total of 20 players. Kremer will pitch.

The Bucs will return Monday to open a three-game series with the Cubs here. The Cincinnati trip for one game tomorrow will be their last until they leave for the East the night of June 2.

Beginning Monday all games at Forbes Field except on Saturdays, holidays and double-header days, will start at 3:30 o'clock.

Honus Lobert

ONCE the fastest man in the major leagues, now just a sort of first-base traffic cop to direct the younger speeders around the paths. The latter is the role in which Pittsburgh fans will see their old friend, Honus Lobert, Beltzhoover product, when the Giants come here on May 8 for a series. In 1903, the Pirates tried Lobert in three games at third base, one at second, part of a game at short. Later he played for the Cubs, the Reds, the Phillies and the Giants. In 1912 he stablished a record for circling the bases, being closed in 13 4-5 seconds in a field day at Cincinnati, a mark that stood until Maurice Archdeacon, then with Rochester, N. Y., made it in 13 2-5 on September 2, 1921, at Rochester. Lobert made his record from a standing start, but Archdeacon started from the left side of the plate and first swung at a pitched ball.

"I CAN'T run any more," says Lobert. The old game leg still stymies me. I have to wear a steel brace on my knee when I get out on the coaching lines. I wear it under my stocking. Just a sprinter slowed up to a walk. Once I walked into the concrete wall at the Polo Grounds, trying for a foul back of third. It ruined my kneecap.

"That was when I was with the Phillies. Then I got with the Giants and I made a hit and tried to circle as many bases as possible, only I got spilled in the process and threw the old knee out of whack again. But for those injuries I might have kept in the pastime a lot longer."

GAMBLING on the weather in an early start this spring has cost the club owners of the big leagues at least $1,000,000 in gate receipts, not to mention the teams being thrown back in condition and many players being crippled or ill.

Three postponements yesterday boosted the total number of cancellations for the season to no fewer than 30 in 17 days—17 in the National and 13 in the American—with the Pirate-Red contest and others to be added today. And three other

TEN-SECOND MOVIE OF HEIR APPARENT TO BABE RUTH'S THRONE

Lou Gehrig was the sensation of the American League race last year with his neck-and-neck battle with his illustrious teammate, Babe Ruth, for the home run hitting championship, which continued right down to the last few weeks, when the Babe stepped out and set a new record of 60 circuit clouts. The popular and hard-hitting Gehrig has annexed two home runs against three for Ruth so far this season and gives every indication of once more fighting it out with the Behemoth of Swat himself for the top honors. The many-sided pictures of Gehrig above give an interesting study of his genial facial features.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

THE boys from Dixie on the Pirate and Red squads enjoyed a big thrill when the snowstorm broke loose yesterday afternoon. Among the Southerners with the Cincinnati entourage are Hughey Critz of Mississippi and Ivy Wingo of Georgia.

"I HOPE this snowstorm doesn't hurt the cotton crop, or those rabbit houn' puppies I sent to Joe Harris," said Hughey.

WINGO, despite his long service as star catcher for the Reds, looks as if he could don the glove and mask again with ease and grace. Ivy was one of the best in the game, his career running along through many seasons as a companion-piece to Honus Wagner and other celebrities. The Flying Dutchman, however, was in the sport many years ahead of Wingo.

BUBBLES Hargrave, captain of the Reds, and one of the leading receivers of the Heydler circuit, has a kid brother with red hair who is in the same role League Hargrave stung a homer for the Tigers. The American in yesterday's game. He has been doing a lot of catching for Moriarty.

THE Dodgers are beginning to look like real threats. Al Tyson, back from his Buffalo exploits, appears to be doing better for Uncle Robbie than he did for McGraw. Tyson, however, was injured much of the time he spent with the Polo Grounders. He and Andy Cohen were main cogs in the Buffalo baseball machine that ran rough-shod over all International League opposition.

COHEN'S success with the Giants is pleasing to fans throughout the circuit. There is a strong appeal to the Jewish boy which is good for the game.

YANK PRO DOWNED, 18-17

MOOR PARK, England, April 28.—Playing phenomenal golf, Archie Compston, British professional, conquered Walter Hagen in their 72-hole match for £750, beating him, on the first hole of their fourth round today, 18 up and 17 to play.

Compston, after his magnificent playing of yesterday on the first 36 holes which left him 14 up, resumed his winning stride this morning and at the end of the third round was 18 up. Going into the fourth round he needed only a half and this he got, the 55th hole being halved in 4's.

HAGEN OUTCLASSED

Hagen took the worst trouncing of his golfing career in the two-day contest which was heralded as for the "match play championship of the world." The American was 18 down at the ending of the morning round, and agreed to quit. Later it was decided to continue play until Compston should win, which he promptly did at the first hole after lunch with a half.

After exchanging congratulations,

Gavuzzi, Payne Tie

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ills., April 28.—(AP.)—Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, England, leader, and Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., runner-up in C. C. Pyle's trans-continental foot race tied for twentieth place in the 28.4-mile lap which brought the racers across the Mississippi river on the eastward trek yesterday.

Gavuzzi and Payne, dashing through the heavy traffic of St. Louis, the first large city on the route, reached the fifth control here in 4:40:39. Gavuzzi's elapsed time for the 2,086.2 miles from Los Angeles is 348:00:35, with a margin of 1:49:35 over Payne.

Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro, finished first in 3:29:23, followed closely by John Salo of Passaic, N. J., in 3:31:55. Philip Granville, Canadian distance champion, was third in 3:49:33.

The field was reduced to 71 by the withdrawal of Nick Persick, 18-year-old Long Beach, Cal., boy, because of exhaustion.

Snowstorm Ruins Local Sport Card

Not only did the heavy and unseasonable snowfall of last night and today prevent the final game of the Pirates' series with the Reds, but it also knocked the props out from under the remainder of the outdoor sports card in this section.

A few sandlot games booked for city and outlying points today were wiped out. The Carnegie Tech-Grove City dual track and field meet, the amateur track and field meet at Schenley Oval, the Pitt-Ohio State tennis matches on the Stadium courts, the West Virginia-Geneva dual meet at Beaver Falls, the Washington county interscholastic meeting at Clairton and the Carnegie Tech-Bethany tennis matches at Bethany, W. Va., all went by the boards.

There is little hope for any outdoor competition tomorrow in view of the condition of the playing fields.

WELCH CANCELS BOUT

Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, will be unable to go through with his bout with Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, O., at Washington, Pa., next Monday night and Terry Lingo, formerly of Cincinnati, but now of the North Side, and managed by Charley Luck, has been substituted for him.

VISITORS GET EARLY TRAINFOR HOME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE final battle of the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati series scheduled at Forbes Field this afternoon was called off on account of snow.

Upon receiving official word of the postponement, the members of the Cincinnati club were hustled out of their quarters in the Schenley Hotel and rushed to the Pennsylvania station where they boarded a train for Cincinnati, where tomorrow they meet the Pirates in a Sunday contest.

Following the battle with the Reds tomorrow the Pirates will return to Forbes Field, where on Monday they open a four-game series with the Chicago Cubs. This series marks the first appearance of the Bruins in Pittsburgh with Kiki Cuyler in their lineup.

As Manager Bush figured on using Kremer on the mound against the Reds today in event the game was played, the veteran right-hander likely will be the mound choice

KEARNS FILES NEW SUIT

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP.)—Beaten by Jack Dempsey in a Federal Court engagement, Jack Kearns one time manager and bosom friend of the "Manassa Mauler," is attempting a comeback in the State Supreme Court.

Basing his action on rulings obtained in his unsuccessful legal battle against Dempsey in United States District Court this week, Kearns filed suit today for $500,00

In his first action, dismis Wednesday, Kearns sought to r lect $701,063 from Dempsey as share of earnings between August, 1923, and July, 1925. The court ruled a contract had existed during that time but Kearns' claims were dismissed when it was ruled that a settlement had been made between the two Jacks after the later date.

PITT, TECH TRACKERS COMPETE TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—With the sensational performance of Harold Keith, University of Oklahoma star, who won the first steeplechase he ever entered yesterday, acting as an inspiration, high school and college athletes will compete in the second day's events of the annual Penn Relays here today.

Through a mistake on the score board, Keith and his mates missed their starting time for the distance medley relay and Keith asked permission to enter the steeplechase. It was granted, and following eleventh hour instructions, he won out.

Before the rain made the track too slow and sloppy, three carnival marks in the decathlon were broken yesterday. Tony Plansky took the lead in the all-around competition, piling up a total of 3778.7165 points in the first five events. Ken Doherty of Detroit is second and Tom Churchill, Oklahoma star, third.

Western Pennsylvania athletes other than Virgil Elliott of Bethany, fifth place man in the decathlon competition, will swing into action in the concluding events of the relays today.

Pitt has men entered in seven events. Capt. Welch will compete in the discus, in which he is a favorite, the broad jump, shot put and javelin. Don Gwinn is entered in the hammer and Vic Pickard will make a determined assault on Sabin Carr and the pole vault mark. Ken Wescean and Jim McCullough, sprinters, are to run in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

The Carnegie Tech mile relay team will run against Georgia Tech in the technical school championship of America mile at 2:30 p. m.

In the principal college relay races yesterday, Penn State tied Pennsylvania for the quarter-mile and won the distance medley while New York University's crack quartet, anchored by Phil Edwards, romped off with the sprint medley crown and middle states one-mile championship.

DRAKE RECORDS FALL

DES MOINES, Ia., April 28—(AP.—The crack University of Illinois relay team, leading from start to finish, captured the University distance medley relay in the outstanding race opening the Drake relay carnival yesterday, beating Indiana in a thrilling finish in 10:24 3-10.

The performance establishes a new record for the carnival, as it was the first time the event had been contested.

The Hastings College team of Hastings, Neb., won the other major relay, the sprint medley for colleges, in 3:34 1-10. This race also created a new record as it was its first running.

Three records were smashed. Simpson College clipped the time for the mile relay for Iowa colleges, with Morningside College of Sioux City, Ia., accounting for a new mark in the 880-yard relay, also restricted to Iowa competition. The Clarinda, Ia., high school quartet smashed the mark for he 440-yard prep event.

HAGEN

Hagen and Compston continued the round as an exhibition match, followed by a large gallery.

"I wish the match had been closer," Compston said. "I had all the good breaks, and Hagen had all the bad luck. I would welcome a return match."

Hagen described Compston's playing as "magnificent," and attributed his own failure to his inferior putting.

"I hope to retrieve myself at Sandwich in the British open," Hagen declared. "I was terrible yesterday and today."

HOMESTEAD BOWLING LEADERS UNCHANGED

Assaults on the high one-game mark featured the fourth day's rolling in the annual Merry Widow duckpin tournament at the Capital alleys, Homestead, yesterday.

Although leaders in every division retained their positions, the single-game record was boosted twice within one hour. Paired with Pope in the men's doubles, Laret contributed a 223 game to take temporary leadership, but Hawke, rolling with Bayles in the doubles, turned in a 225 game a few minutes later. Yesterday's scores:

Men's singles—Everett, 466; Hartley, 468; Everett, 472; Hartley, 380; George, 332; A. John, 457; Popp, 420; Mails, 508; Laret, 480; Smith, 437; Pfeffer, 478; Stewart, 453; Thompson, 475.

Men's doubles—Pfeffer and Murray, 904; Murray and Brown, 948; J. Mallo and H. Popp, 795; Smith and Laret, 816; Laret and Pope, 1,027; Mallo and Smith, 724; Graham and Torreyson, 869; Bayles and Hawke, 982; Sabel and F. Lesko, 910; Pfeffer and Stewart, 899; Graham and Murray, 900; Torreyson and Hawke, 968; C. Tomlinson and Renquist, 912; Everett and Roberts, 832.

Fear Richards' Brother Is Slain

NEW YORK, April 28.—(INS.)—Grave fears that Ralph Richards, brother of Vincent Richards, tennis star, was slain by gangsters on whose pals he had squealed, was expressed by federal agents today.

Richards escaped from the custody of city detectives, prohibition agents and a deputy United States marshal on April 18 and has not been heard of since.

Richards, who had been in difficulties with the police before, was arrested last month in Westchester county on charges of impersonating a prohibition agent to collect bribes. Bail was fixed at $40,000, and in default of it he was sent to the Tombs.

There he appeared willing to aid the authorities in rounding up the gang of which he was alleged to be a member, and he was frequently taken out of the prison in search of criminals.

WANTS RING SOLONS TO SUSPEND WELCH

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 28.—I. E. Goodridge, matchmaker of the Washington Gardens Club, of this city, has made formal complaint with the Pennsylvania State Boxing Commission against Teddy Welsh, of McKeesport, for "running out" of a main bout match scheduled at the local club next Monday night with Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, O.

Welsh was so badly battered in a fight at McKeesport Thursday that he notified the local club he would not be able to go on with his local engagement.

Goodridge claims violation of Commission regulations in engaging in a bout within five days of the one here for which he had contracted previously, and also asserts that it is the second offense of the kind with the Washington club.

Goodridge announced that he had signed Terry Lingo, 139 pounds, of Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, managed by Charlie Luck, of the Steel City, to take Welsh's place.

BIG BILL, HENNESSEY IN TITLE PLAY TODAY

OJAI, Cal., April 28.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden, II., skipper of the Davis Cup team who trounced one of his crew here yesterday, will face another for the men's singles championship of the annual Ojai invitation tennis tournament today.

"Big Bill" took Walter Allison, Texas member of the Davis Cup quartet, into camp, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2. Allison stiffened to take the second set but his captain had plenty in reserve to take the match.

Today Tilden will face John Hennessey of Indianapolis, for the title. Hennessey defeated Gerald Stratford of San Francisco, yesterday.

AMATEUR GOLF GIANTS PLAY FOR OLYMPIC FUND

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(INS.)—America's golfing hopes in the Walker Cup matches step out for an airing today on the Columbia course.

Bobby Jones, the one and only, pairs up with Philip Finlay, against Jesse Sweetser and Roland Mackenzie in a four-ball match for the benefit of the national Olympic fund. The course was soggy from an all night rain storm.

TITLE RELAY RACE ON P. A. A. CARD TONIGHT

An open swimming meet, with a 200-yard senior A. A. U. relay championship for men as the feature, will be staged in the P. A. A. pool tonight.

Included in the list of events, aside from the title trophy, will be a fancy diving contest for men and a 75-yard relay race for girls.

Previous to the start of the meet, the P. A. A. team will elect a captain to take the place of the late Bill Mathews.

HOLY CROSS PITCHER HURLS NO-HIT GAME

WORCESTER, Mass., April 28.—(INS.)—Al Fons, Holy Cross pitcher, is the latest addition to baseball's hall of fame. He did not allow a hit in whitewashing Springhill College of Alabama here by a score of 7 to 0.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

The international radio program for the blind, sponsored by the Lions Club of Pittsburgh and featuring artists of world fame, will be heard at 10 o'clock tonight over stations WCAE and KDKA. The program will be broadcast from the stage in the Syria Mosque. Among the entertainers will be Harold Bauer, noted pianist; Anna Case, former Metropolitan Opera Company soprano; Edward Grasse, violinist and composer; Milt Gross, author and humorist, and John B. Kennedy, associate editor of Collier's. Preceding the appearance of these artists a preliminary entertainment, featuring local radio entertainers, will be given for eye-witnesses who assemble in the Mosque.

The Lions' program will be broadcast throughout the nation by the National Broadcasting Company's Red Network, and its Pacific Chain. KDKA's broadcast of the program will be in the nature of a direct pickup.

The Strollers will present a scene from "Hamlet" over WCAE at 9 o'clock.

The United States Navy Band will be heard over KDKA and associated Blue Network stations at 8 o'clock. The program will be presented from the Navy Yard at Washington. These marches will be featured: "All Hands," by Charles Benter, leader of the band; "Prince Albert," by Teike, and "El Capitan," by Sousa. Selections from Schubert, Friml and Liszt compositions also will be played.

"The Arcadians," a musical fantasy in three acts, with Jessica Dragonette, soprano, and Colin O'More, tenor, will be heard on the Philco hour broadcast from KDKA at 9 o'clock.

PIRATES

against the Redlegs in Cincinnati tomorrow. Eppa Rixey is due to oppose the Corsairs.

Bush's morning practice plans have been upset by the weather. There was no forenoon exercise yesterday.

The wet weather is causing quite a few cancellations in the big-league schedules, but the drafts are well provided with open dates so that there should be no trouble in running off the postponed battles. The delays, however, make the officials somewhat fretful, but this is not a bad sign.

Meantime the ailing members of the Pittsburgh team appear to be rounding into form. Carmen Hill showed Thursday that he is O. K. while Earl Smith is ready for the catching assignment any time now. Lee Meadows has been nursing a weakened arm which is responding to treatment.

A few days of warm weather probably would place the Freebooters in condition to show some of their best qualities. Manager Bush and his men are hoping for sunshine.

The three scraps with the Cubs will be followed by four separate and distinctive series with Eastern enemies. Boston, New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia will come into town in the order named.

Hunter Confident U. S. Can Regain Davis Cup

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP.)—With the firm belief that the United States has a "darn good chance" to win back the Davis Cup in France, Francis T. Hunter, a member of the American team and, with William T. Tilden, holder of the national doubles title, sailed today for France.

He plans to condition himself on European courts prior to joining the American team in London if it is successful in the American zone.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

games resulted in ties through rain interruptions.

THE Giants have been the main sufferers. One week ago yesterday they were idle on account of an open date; the following day they played in Boston; they traveled to Brooklyn for Sunday, only to have the game prevented by rain. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday showers kept them idle in Boston; Thursday they played in Philadelphia and met defeat, and yesterday they were rained out again.

GEORGE UHLE of the Indians and Sammy Gray of the Browns yesterday became the first major league pitcher to win four games this season. Uhle has the better record as he is still undefeated, while Gray is charged with one reverse.

TRADER HORN
THE GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY OF MODERN TIMES

Horn's Fine Shooting Brings Down a Rascal Elephant

Great Bull Pachyderm, Mortally Hurt, Plunges Down Hill With Crash

What Has Gone Before.

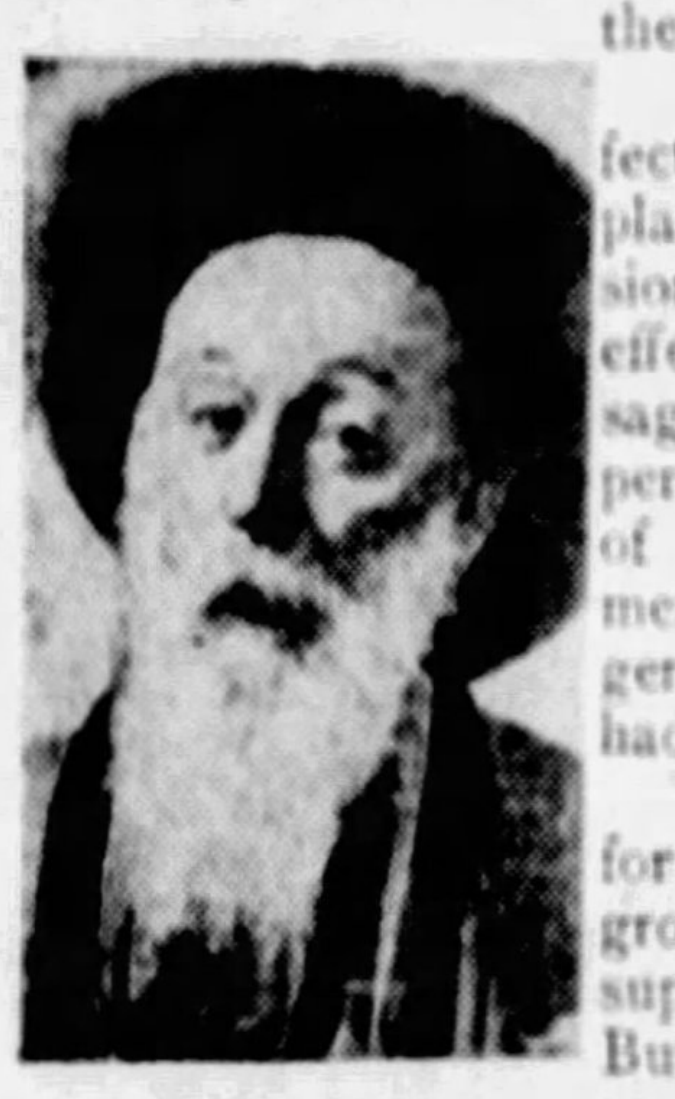
Alfred Aloysius Horn, an Ivory Coast trader at the age of 18, gets into a native temple, where he sees a ruby that he plans to steal. He writes to a school friend, "Little Peru," to send him an imitation to replace the real one. He has seen Nina T——, the white goddess, daughter of an Englishman, priestess of the Isorga. He discovers that she belongs to an aristocratic family. Her octoroon mother has married a native witch-doctor. This is a continuation of Horn's narrative as written by himself at the age of 73.

Natives Offer Their Wives

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN
Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE water of the lakes is wonderfully clear, so much so that in many places you can see the bottom plainly. These lakes are joined together by swamps, and one could possibly travel by them from Lake Eninga to the country inhabited by the Black Cammas.



ALFRED A. HORN

Looking round these lakes at the perfect shadows of villages, canoes, trees, plantations, etc., it gives one the impression that you are floating in mid-air. The effect is wonderful. There are no passages to enter these lakes large enough to permit large steamers or boats on account of the narrowness of the inlets. Submerged rocks in places make them dangerous, although I could use my sail and had very little paddling to do.

The lagoons extending east and west for many miles are skirted by large groves. The tall trees of great variety support a dome of foliage of various hues. Butterflies of many shades and colors flit around, whilst parrots of various kinds make a home here.

The prettiest of these is the Kiombe, which is green, with a beautiful head-crest, and in captivity makes a beautiful talker, but is not so hardy as the East Coast Pretty Poll, which will live nearly anywhere.

The varieties of beautiful fauna and flora to be found here beggar description, whilst a zoo let loose inhabits these places. The people inhabiting these lakes are Galwas or Eningas, who cut rubber in the interland lying south, whilst ebony is to be found near by in abundance.

Friend, Take a Wife

The country is ruled by small chiefs, many of whom I visited; they would invariably trot out their wives and you were told to pick out one or more and not to feel lonesome in his town. This is looked on as a matter of course by all the tribes, except the cannibal tribes, who are absolutely moral.

I found trade was excellent, nearly all the trading posts needed new stocks, whilst most of them were even able to pay their debts with the stocks of ivory, ebony, rubber, etc., besides a not inconsiderable quantity of tortoise-shell they had on hand.

I left the big lake before daybreak and soon after sunrise was in the Ogowe River, which was very low. As we passed the big sand banks huge crocodiles slipped into the water from the banks on which they had laid, mouth open, whilst the tick birds picked their teeth free from insects, etc.

Hippos were numerous, while waterfowl, herons, egrets and many other birds were busy feeding on the fish that come yearly in great numbers from the sea to spawn. The crocodiles grow to a tremendous size and I measured some of them especially one who often could be seen on the long sand bank near Adonimango. From the tip of his tail-mark on the sand to his nose he easily measured over 23 feet, was olive green in color, to dark mud green, whilst his paws were crooked so as to give him a fine hold of any animal he once closed them on.

Sleep on the Sand

No one had ever bothered him and I have often passed him at less than 10-foot distance. He would slip into the river quite unconcerned. His skin was spotted with dark brown spots.

We passed several large Galwa towns on our way and the youngsters, as well as many of the grown-ups, would bid us good-morning. "Mbolo Tangi, good morning, white man." I did not care to call at any of these towns, as they always took whatever they had for sale to the trading stations, where many of their men were employed as canoe boys to traders.

I had a good sound sleep on a sandbank that evening. The sandbanks in the open river are always the most desirable camping grounds, as generally a cool breeze blows over the sand after sundown and makes the night air deliciously cool and refreshing.

A swim in the river or lakes every morning makes us feel fit and ready for breakfast, which we always had early. I then gave the canoe boys a tot of rum each, took a nip myself and always felt ready for everything.

Leaving the camping ground before sunrise we were soon in sight of the long island where the German trading post is situated on the eastern point. The left waterway of the island takes you to Adonimaningo. The island is, I think, 20 miles long. We felt we were nearing home once more.

Bad Elephant Appears

As we were turning from the big river we suddenly came to a standstill. Talking ceased. I grabbed my rifle, so did Renchoro. The left hand river was about a quarter of a mile wide and leisurely walking along the edge of a sandbank was a huge bull elephant making directly for our side of the river. He was about the tallest one I ever have shot.

His skin hung loose about his sides and legs, which reminded one of mud-colored overalls. His ponderous and nodding head carried splendid large black ivories, whilst his large ears moved slowly, keeping time with his leisurely stride.

He entered the water about forty yards from us; he then took up a trunk full of water with which he sprayed himself with ears erect. He continued the process several times, turning the end of his trunk so as to make a circular complete shower bath over his body. We had a fine view of him. The old rascal elephant was well known to the natives who dwelt on the island; he had paid them yearly visits from time out of mind, he was a night prowler and had killed many of the natives on his rounds and he always destroyed more than he could eat.

This dangerous pachyderm was called by the nickname of Ojuga (which means hunger and starvation), producer of want and hunger. I could have shot him and probably killed him whilst he was crossing the river, but he always held his head in a position to make the eye shot dangerous, as the sway of his head was difficult to keep time with and I had been taught that the behind-the-ear shot is instantaneously fatal.

An elephant cannot see still objects. On he came toward us and turned to the right 25 yards from us, but he held his ears too close to his head for me to take a bede on the fatal shooting spot. As he left the water, he headed for the rocky hillside, quite close to us and commenced to climb upward, but gave me no chance for a sure kill.

Up he went and as the hill was very steep, he seemed to be climbing a ladder. He took his time but never stopped, he was a splendid climber. About one hundred feet above the water he trumpeted, his ears were up but he was tail on. As the path was small and dangerous he had signalled ahead that he was coming and wanted a clear road.

Suddenly he turned with ears still up. I fired. No result. I fired again with a rifle quickly handed to me by my boy, who was good at the job and always behind me loading up. Another shot behind the ear, no result. He quickened his pace and disappeared.

But He Was Dead

I jumped to the sandbank with my boy and as I pointed my rifle the rascal fell backward; the shots had taken effect. He was quite 200 feet high when he fell backward, bringing what seemed the hill with him. Down, down he came with a few tons of loosened rock and a cloud of dust with him and fell into the river, about 10 yards from the canoe, with his head on the sandbank and his huge body in the water.

We had all cleared away, the canoe boys diving like frogs from a log. When we all had ceased laughing and the dust had cleared away, we found he was quite dead, the hind portion of his body being covered in a pile of rock and dust.

My deserted canoe was now adrift going down stream. So I gave strict orders to Renchoro for everybody to get busy. I gave them a good lot of rum each and guessed the weight of my prime black ivories, after measuring them, at 150 pounds, which was a good guess, as they scaled 156 pounds when taken from the head.

Students 'Peppy' -:- DUQUESNE ADOPTS ASSEMBLY -:- Keck Speaker

PEPPY

Peppy crowds of students attended the first of a series of student assemblies, adopted to organize student spirit on the campus, particularly athletically. These happy girls (see them smile?) are Margaret Kettl, Evelyn Coyne, Mildred Rohr, and Elizabeth O'Donnell.

ACCOUNTS

The school of accounts supplied these girls, Betty Nussbaum, Margaret Dailey, Peggy Nussbaum, Margaret Kenna, Mary Dusette, Helen Jacobsen and Marie Wald. Harry Keck, sports editor, Sun-Tele, spoke on the unification of college spirit.

Turn Clock Ahead at 2 A. M.

Pittsburgh will lose an hour tonight and daylight saving time will go into effect at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning. At that hour clocks will be turned ahead one hour throughout the city and in many of the surrounding communities. Railroads already have announced their new schedules and virtually all of Pittsburgh's business houses, including the stock exchange and banks, will operate on daylight time.

Many churches will begin their services tomorrow on the new schedule, but some will defer the change until next Sunday. The clocks in city and county offices and the courts will remain at eastern standard time, but the employes will start work an hour earlier.

BEAVER, Pa., April 28.—Beaver industries, business and schools will go on daylight time Monday morning to conform to the Pittsburgh time.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP.)—Clocks in New York City and many other eastern cities will be turned ahead one hour tomorrow when daylight saving time goes into effect for the summer months. The official hour for the change in time is 2 a. m.

GAMBLING HOUSE HAD FIVE ROOMS; FINED $600

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 28.—A. L. Kestner, 35, of Washington, arrested in a five-roomed gambling suite at Monongahela recently, pleaded guilty before Judge Erwin Cummins yesterday. He was fined $600.

NEEDED ON FARM, JURYMEN SAY

Many farmers summoned for jury service at the May 7 term of the United States District Court are asking to be excused. In requests received daily by J. Wood Clark, clerk of the court, they say the backward season has delayed Spring plowing and planting, and that the can ill afford to leave in May.

Many originally summoned are from farming districts.

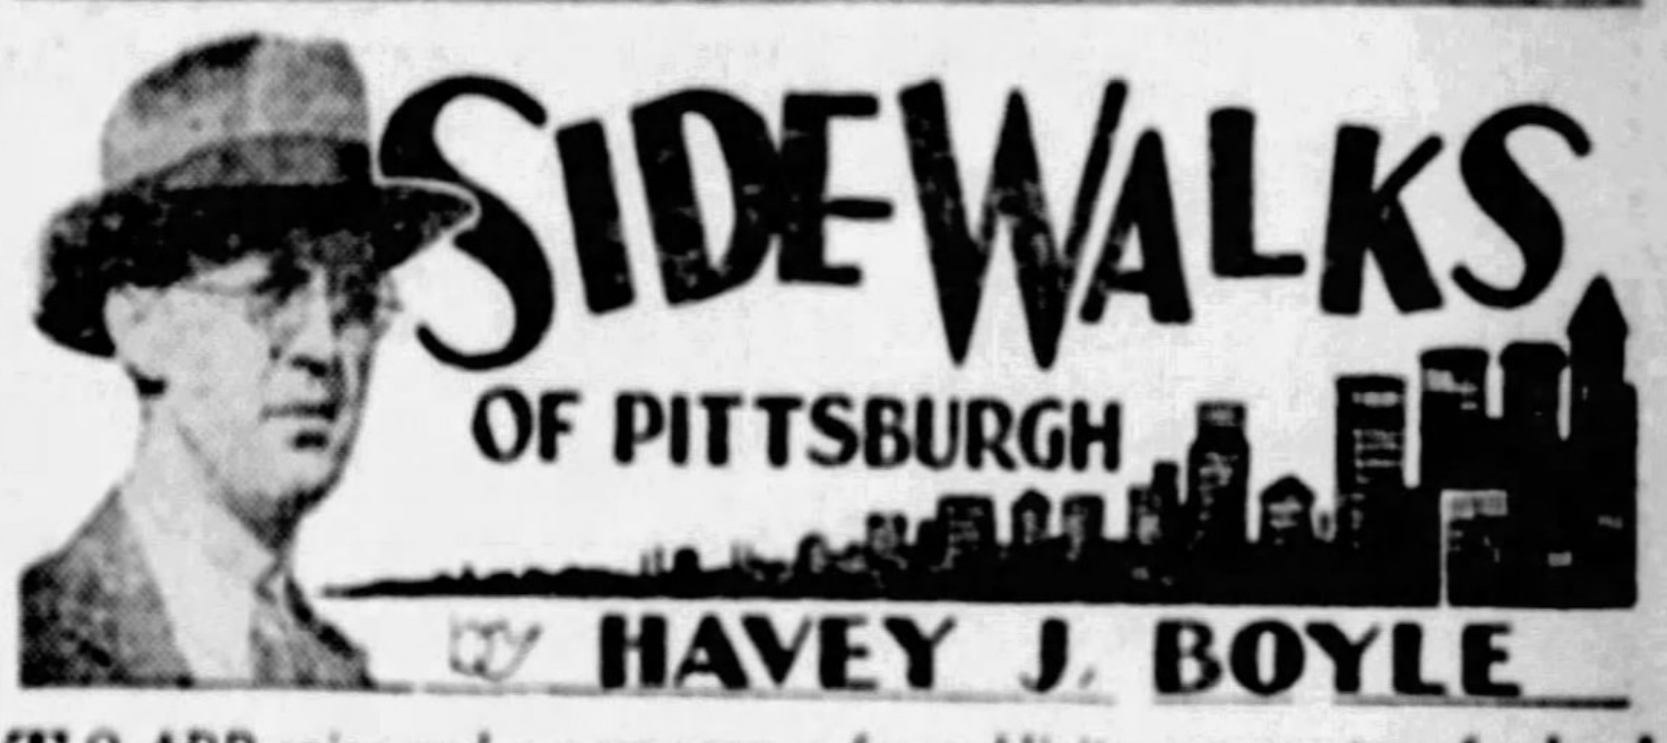
The letters are being referred to the judges as the clerk is unauthorized to grant the requests. The court will convene May 7.

CLUB ARRANGES FOR TWO HIKES SUNDAY

Two hikes have been scheduled for Sunday for the Pittsburgh Hiking Club, one from Thornburg to Coraopolis, about 14 miles, under the leadership of Miss Grace Moorehead. Those taking this hike meet at Penn avenue and Stanwix street and take car No. 20 leaving Pittsburgh about 9 a. m., daylight time, hikers taking their own lunch. The afternoon hike, led by Howard Morris, starts from the end of the Carrick car line. For this take car No. 53, Diamond and Wood streets, at 2 p. m. The hike will cover about six miles.

HIT BY AUTO, MAN DYING

Struck by an automobile on Glenwood Bridge, an unidentified man, about 40, is believed dying in Homestead Hospital. C. J. Woolheater, 4930 Second avenue, whose auto struck the man last night, took the victim to the hospital. He said the man had stepped in front of his car. Woolheater was released on bond.



TO ADD spice and a new avenue for publicity a promoter of a local enterprise brought Bossy Gillis, the wise-cracking Mayor of Newburyport, Mass., to Pittsburgh. Bossy was taken to visit Mayor Kline. Bossy was not loquacious when he met the Mayor and the promoter was chagrined. "Bossy, you were a flop there," said the promoter. "Sure I was," said Bossy, "when I looked at that Mayor and the swell front he puts up I was 'non-pulsed.'"

LATER, the Poison Shooters invited Bossy to give them a bit of his philosophy, and to a packed gallery, he poured forth his idea of things. Some of his lines, which Bill Doak was kind enough to put down, were:

"Whoever heard of Newburyport before I became Mayor of the town?"

"I am honest most of the time—in my own way."

"Workingmen should have Sunday for recreation. If rich men are allowed to play golf on Sunday the poor man should be allowed his baseball."

"The guys who made the blue laws are dead a long time."

"When you hear me hot-airing you can bet your life I am being paid for it."

"Mother left me some valuable property and I ain't giving up anything without a struggle."

"You may think me a 'dud' but they don't in Newburyport where I pay $1,500 a year in taxes at $34 a thousand."

"Have doubts about all politicians except myself."

"Politicians must take care of their friends. I am taking care of mine as long as they work for my administration. When they don't, out they go, and I'll get some new ones."

HE HAS a practical philosophy, anyway, has Bossy. He got three centuries and rail fare for his Pittsburgh stunt. He has made some $2,500 so far our of speaking engagements.

WE HAVE heard that a cat likes a home more than he likes the inhabitants thereof, while a dog prefers the folks around the home more than he cares for the architecture and landscape. That is why, possibly, the average human likes the dog better than he likes the cat. An evidence of the general concern for canines was had in East Liberty the other day. Our operative in that section, A-44, calls up and tells about a poodle taking a snooze in the middle of the sidewalk and adds it was pleasant to see how thoughtful pedestrians were careful not to disturb the slumber, although pedestrian traffic at this point, Penn and Highland, is unusually heavy.

Of course, the pedestrians were obeying the old injunction: "Let sleeping dogs lie," but it was not in this case to escape any consequences, our spy tells us, but rather was a new evidence of the solicitude which the human has for the dog.

THE humble item comes here, by the way, not more than 24 hours after we had finished reading "The Doctor's Dilemma," by Mr. Shaw, in the preface of which Mr. Shaw argues violently against cruelty to animals in the guise of scientific research. Whether Mr. Shaw is right or wrong, deponeth sayeth not, but he did issue something worth pondering when he said in effect: Even those who would see a dog, for instance, carved up for scientific purpose, would hesitate a long while before giving up their own dog for such clinical study. It is Mr. Shaw's idea that if knowledge can be obtained in no other way then we ought to do without the knowledge.

IN THE same play the author takes quite a poke at that branch of letters known as the newspaper game. In a touching scene a reporter hears a dying man urge his widow-to-be to marry again. Mr. Shaw, who likely has been misquoted now and then, makes the reporter say: "Isn't it nice that the poor fellow insists that his wife shall not marry again."

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait · by Elenore MEHERIN

Jerry Discovers That Their Income Will Not Meet Their Expenses

MARY reached out and flicked the pencil from his hand: "Now I've been good enough, Sacksie love. Eight-thirty. Let's wend!"

About the same moment Jerry was stepping along gaily in the warm October evening. She was in a blessed mood.

"Now I'm free of him," she thought happily. "All that a wench can do is 'did!' If he lives, he lives; if he dies, he dies!" And laughed, recalling his trembling hand and the urgence of his: "Won't you please come and see my plans, Jerry? I've been waiting and waiting for you to ask."

She would go indeed. And if she found Mary sitting up in her coffin, she'd gather more vicious nails and hammer her down hard!

But the next week passed. She found no time. Two very absorbing things happened—one delightful and one tragic.

It was the beginning of the holiday rush. They were very busy at the shop. But Jerry had managed between times to do an oil of the ferry lanes at night. This was the high and mighty event.

Her former teacher, Macphail, sent her into a heaven of delight with his comment. He said: "This is your high point, Jerry. Better than the promise of all your other efforts." Immense praise from him. He hung it and put a price of $75 on it.

So Jerry soared into dreams. She began to count the minutes in the day, grudgingly careful of them. Next year she'd do an oil a month.

And they would all jaunt off to Europe. Marza was aching for a trip. Robert Caples would be going again next year. And Stephanie by the summer would be truly well. Oh, what a gay gypsy caravan!

They talked about it dashingly in the long evenings that they now spent at home. Quite a different home than they had known a year ago. Almost any night you could see the lights in the living room now.

"Real old tabbies," Marza commented with a gay irony, as she cooked dinner with the aid of several young men who were paying ardent attention to Stephanie. They couldn't take her out, so they called and helped to set the table and borrowed books which they didn't return and sang songs and washed dishes.

One of this retinue—a dashing young interne whom Stephanie met at the hospital—brought his moving picture machine to the house twice a week and gave them the choicest in 10-year-old movies.

"Do you have dances in the spring?" Stephanie said one evening. "I wonder if I'll be able to be really up and going by then? I'm so afraid the world will slow up before I've a chance to take my fling."

"Aren't you having your fling now? Heinie, Erwin, Jimmie and your gay young internes. You've done most remarkably well for an infant only 15 months out of the convent."

"P—," said she. "I can only ride a few blocks—only take two dance steps—can't hardly even sit very long. And I want real wild times.

"Think of the fun when we're rolling home tight together!"

She was an orderly small person—this Stephanie—and she added a piquant gladness to Jerry's daily homecomings. She even had regular moments for saying prayers.

Almost every night when Jerry arrived, she found Stephanie writing to Heinie, who was now gone to Seattle. Stephanie was quite out in the open about it.

"You miss him more than two bits' worth, Steve?"

"Oh, vastly more than that. In a whole year he didn't fail me once. Wouldn't it be lovely if you were grateful and would marry him for such princely devotion!"

Jerry glanced at her sister. Vivid and winsome elf with her laughing eyes and plucky mouth.

"Better gratitude that you should love him, Steve. He's a different lad and a far gayer one with you than he ever was with me. I frightened him and made him unhappy. A good test of love is the mirth you bring to the other."

They often sat hours in this intimate kind of talk—men—love—marrying. Stephanie hung on Jerry's words as though the whole dictionary of love to the very last word were known by her sister.

One night in the middle of this week, Jerry came in to find a pale, distracted Stephanie lying face down on her couch.

CHAPTER LXIV.

JERRY flew across the room: "What's the matter? Stephanie!"

"Oh, sorry. I didn't hear you coming."

Stephanie sat up slowly, keeping her face averted.

This evasion frightened Jerry. She said casually with a gaunt quiet: "Stephanie, what has happened?"

"The Allens are moving."

As though she had never heard the name before: "The Allens?"

"Yes—both families. They're leaving on the first of the month."

Jerry stared dubiously at her sister—at that pale, distracted face. "Suppose they are? What about it?"

"Starvation about it—that's all. And the whole burden on you. And the whole cause of it—I!"

"But damn it, is that all! I thought the long-nosed fiend had climbed in the window and attacked you."

"Who's the long-nosed fiend?" asked Stephanie, charmed always with Jerry's profanity. "You don't mean Robert or Heinie, I hope."

"I was prepared even for such, by the look of you."

Said Stephanie grimly: "I've had time to figure out the meaning of it, and when you've considered this you'll probably rate a visit from the long-nosed fiend, whoever she is, not much worse.

"The two tenants that you've had for 15 years are quitting. There'll be nothing but the $70 coming in from Sylvia and Inga. That won't even pay interest on the mortgages I've caused.

"So you'll have to shoulder it all—interest, taxes, insurance, upkeep. When you get through you'll have about $75 left for food, clothes, car fare, lunches and everything else that the women need. We can't get by."

"I suppose that with the Allens all possible tenants for apartment houses vanish from the earth?"

"Look around the neighborhood. Five new apartment buildings finished in seven months. More than half of them still idle. What chance has an old place with only one bath for seven rooms, no elevator and no service, to compete with these new ones? Especially when we haven't even the money to redecorate. They may be idle for years!"

"Oh, why not give us a good tragedy and make it forever?"

"And it will be spring," Stephanie went on feverishly, "before I can begin to help—before I can even take a part-time job. I hate being me!"

"Where's Marza?" asked Jerry abruptly. "Does she know?"

"She was just gone when old Mrs. Allen and her daughter—the fat, slobby one, called. They gave the notice to me."

"Well," said Jerry, "we can live on $75 a month. Dr. Jessica Plexotta of the university has it all doped out. You can eat on 35 cents a day per person."

"But try and do it!"

"That leaves us," ignored Jerry, "about $15 each for luxury. It's a medical fact, furthermore, that you can survive six weeks on water alone. I guess we get by!"

Marza took the news as she took all financial blows—imperturbably. She had no feeling for money; no thrill in mere possession. And she had never been sufficiently hard pressed to know the incredible power and beauty a dollar betokens to those who haven't got it.

"I'll advertise," she informed Jerry blandly, "and we'll both stay home on Sunday to show the prospective tenants through—" As though there would be scores of these fighting for first chance.

"There are few sites in San Francisco commanding so fine a view—very few large apartments cheap as ours."

"And," waving aside Jerry's objections, "there are plenty of people willing to climb three flights of stairs for the stretch of water, spire and mountains that we may look upon."

The Allens moved. Sundays came. Prospective tenants called and disappeared. One Sunday there was no response at all.

"People are already settled for the winter," said Jerry flatly. "We'll stand a better chance in the spring."

Marza grew pale. She made no answer.

"I must learn to curtail," she told Jerry that night. She was adding up the bills—food and laundry and even such a small matter as the gas bill. "We seem to be very extravagant with butter and eggs, chickens and steaks."

"We feed large numbers," Jerry said this unwittingly. But she was suddenly confronted with the abject meanness of counting the cost of food your friends ate.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

The Great Producer, Wishing to Keep Mary and Noel Apart, Starts at a Suggestion

WHAT someone has called "the eternal solidarity of the feminine" flared within me at Philip Veritzen's question concerning the affair between his son and Mary Harrison. The age-old instinct of women to represent themselves as the pursued, never the pursuers, prompted my reply to his query.

"I don't think there is any progress at all as far as Mary is concerned," I said, wondering if I were stretching the truth beyond all belief. "She likes Noel tremendously, of course—we all do—no one could help loving that boy—but I am sure she is not—well, I suppose, 'in love' is as good a phrasing as any. Of course, I have no idea of Noel's state of mind, but they are not betrothed—of that I am certain."

I put up a petition to the goddess of truth for forgiveness when I remembered the things which Noel had confided to me.

"Thank heaven for that, at any rate!" he exclaimed. Then, as I found myself unable to preserve a "poker face" at this astounding outburst, he added:

"I know I am astonishing you, but I feel very strongly upon the subject of a possible entanglement for Noel just now. He is incurably romantic—in fact, his infatuation for a girl led to the estrangement between us, as well as the blighting of his own life."

How I longed to tell him that the shadow which had rested for so long upon his son's life would never have stayed there had he not smothered his opportunity for comprehending sympathy with his too Quixotic young son beneath what Lillian terms his mulishness. But I made no comment, nor, indeed, did my employer wait for one.

"Do not misunderstand me," he said. "I have no possible objection to Mary Harrison's association with Noel except for her own sake. But it would be fatal to her career, as well as to his future, to have them mixed up in any romantic nonsense now. I am sure you agree with me, do you not?"

There was a significance in his eyes and tone which I thought I understood. It meant, "I can count on you to help me separate Mary and Noel, can I not?"

All the stubbornness and sense of fairness in me flared in a determination to answer him in the negative. But as I remembered his own obstinacy, a more Machiavellian resolve came to me. I knew both Mary and Noel well enough to be sure that opposition to their association and scheming to separate them would only bring them closer together. Any seeming acquiescence to Philip Veritzen's plan on my part could do them no possible harm and might accomplish the purpose of lessening his watchfulness with the idea that his schemes were running according to his schedule.

Then, too, I was violating no truth in making an affirmative reply to his openly spoken question, leaving him to draw what inference he pleased as my answer to his unspoken but no less eloquent query. But there was a distinctly rebellious feeling in my heart as I answered him.

"Any one knowing the exactions of a career such as Mary has set her heart on must agree with you," I said. "And it ought not be difficult to keep them apart this summer. I imagine that Miss Lincoln would be the best ally you could enlist."

Into Philip Veritzen's eyes flashed something as terrifying as it was inscrutable, then vanished.

"Just what do you mean by that?" he asked.

Market Now Three-Sided; Abolishes Seven-Day Week

By B. C. FORBES

THE stock market has now become three-sided, not two-sided. No longer is the battle between only the bulls and the bears. The Federal Reserve Bank authorities have entered the ring.

Their purpose is not the same as the bears. The bears are keen to pound the market into demoralization. The farther they can knock prices down, the richer their harvest. The reserve authorities want no such upset, with its inevitably harmful effect upon general business.

But the financial powers that be do desire a quieting-down of the tumultuous speculation. They fear the final consequences of a quick succession of 4,000,000-share days and skyrocketing quotations. They would like to get Wall street off the front page. They reason that the country would benefit were speculation to return to normal and quotations to less dizzy heights for those stocks which have been daringly boomed. The Federal Reserve Banks want order, not disorder; calm, not chaos; investment, not gambling.

Thus far the bull leaders have proved astonishingly able to hold their own against both opponents, the bears and the reserve authorities. But it would seem—at least to me—an unequal battle, with the chances all favoring the nation's financial powers.

VISITS to brokerage offices do not inspire one with confidence in the market's stability. Too many of the tense, nervous customers crowding before quotation boards have all the earmarks of novices. Their comments usually do not reflect deep financial or economic understanding. The tape alone counts in their eyes. What happens on the floor of the stock exchange is all-important; nothing that happens off the floor of the exchange is of any importance. Such shallow reasoning courts ultimate disaster.

Yet it must be admitted that the gamblers and the speculators have made far more money than conservative financial and economic students. The new-comers have "put it all over" the old-timers.

The end is not yet, however.

ONE of the most successful of the large-caliber western operators during the great rise in the stock market has been visiting New York, Joe Toplitzky, of Los Angeles. Although quite young, he has made a fortune in real estate at home. His system has always been to look well ahead. He developed aptitude for spotting coming sections of the city and then acting accordingly on a big scale. At present his mind is on the looming importance of Los Angeles as a dominating center of the aircraft industry.

"Because of our unique climate and other advantages, you will see Los Angeles become as important as an aircraft center as it has become in the motion picture industry," he declared confidently. "Our citizens are just beginning to grasp this fact and are getting ready to spend millions to make the prospect a reality." Later he remarked: "Chain stores and other national organizations which usually are willing to lease property in most places, are now insisting on buying outright property in Los Angeles."

AMERICA'S merchant marine continues to languish. Not one new ship is being built here to compete in foreign trade. It is high time we ceased drifting idly and blindly.

CONGRATULATIONS to President K. R. Kingsbury, of the Standard Oil of California. He is to set the whole country an example by doing away with the seven-day week for oil drillers.

Mr. Kingsbury, an ex-laborer, introduced the eight-hour-day for all of his company's employes 11 years ago. He also put into effect a system of monthly employment, putting all workers on a monthly salary rather than a daily or hourly wage. The next step was to give one day off every week to all employes, with the exception of drilling crews. All this was done without any reduction in the monthly pay. Now comes this gratifying announcement:

"Being satisfied that it can be accomplished without jeopardizing the successful drilling of the well, the company has now decided to adopt the six-day week for drilling crews. Like previous steps, the new policy is a radical departure from custom. This change will also be made without reduction in pay per month.

"An additional crew will work 24 hours a week on each well, making 3½ crews instead of three. It will probably be found that the work will go on as well as ever, while the men will be far better off, with a regular day of rest and recreation each week."

Which employer will be the next to report progress in eliminating the iniquitous seven-day work week?

RAILS AND OILS LEAD MARKET UPWARD

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP.)—Stock prices resumed their upward movement at the opening of today's market. Early buying centered largely in the railroad, oil and public utility shares. Initial gains of a point or so were recorded by Consolidated Gas, Allied Chemical and New York Central. Standard Oil of New York advanced fractionally to a new 1928 high record at 35⅝.

Although week-end mercantile reviews described business conditions as spotty, Wall Street was inclined to pay little attention to them, bullish encouragement was derived from the recent advance in wheat and cotton prices, which is expected to increase the purchasing power of the west and south, and from the optimistic statement on the copper industry by President Kelley of the Anaconda Company on the eve of his departure for Europe.

Case Threshing Machine soared 9 points to 202 and Atlantic Refining, Air Reduction, Dupont, Adams Express, Westinghouse Electric and Victor Talking Machine advanced 2 to 4 points. American Tobacco, which was heavy earlier in the week on the announcement of cigaret price cuts, turned strong on buying influenced by President Hill's prediction that lower prices would stimulate sales and probably increase the profits of the company.

More than a score new high records were established in the early trading, the list including the three Pan American issues, Louisiana Oil, Snider Packing, North American, Chicago and Alton common and preferred, Patino Mines and Victor Talking Machine.

Foreign exchanges opened firm, with sterling cables quoted around 4.88 1-16.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 28.—The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 4 to 13 points under realizing or liquidation, based on lower Liverpool cables and prospects for more favorable weather conditions.

The forecast for light to heavy frosts in sections of the eastern and central belt brought in some buying which steadied the market and after selling off to 20.90c for July, or about 11 to 13 points net lower, the market rallied slightly. Realizing continued, however, and active months were about 8 to 10 points net lower at the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported liquidation in Liverpool absorbed by trade selling at the decline, but that trading in cotton cloths and yarns was slow in developing, higher prices checking business.

Futures closed steady, 1 to 7 points lower; May, 21.23c; July, 20.99@21.01c; October, 20.86@20.87c; December, 20.72@20.74c; January, 20.67@20.69c.

Spot steady, middling, 21.75c.

CARNEGIE FUND PICKS HEROES

The Carnegie Hero fund commission at its meeting here yesterday recognized 25 acts of heroism. Eight of the heroes lost their lives, and pensions aggregating $5,400 a year were granted to dependents of six. Fifteen awards amounting to $11,500, were granted by the commission. The awards in some cases were for educational purposes.

A girl and a woman were among those rewarded. Irene Frances Herlihy, 13, a school girl of Charlestown, Mass., saved two children from drowning. Mrs. Sadie Esther Baskin of Springfield, Mass., saved a child from being killed by a street car in 1923.

MECHANICS TO CONFER ORPHANS' HOME DEGREE

The District Council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics will confer the Orphans Home degree on a large class tomorrow night at the Soldiers Memorial Hall. This will mark the first time that the degree was ever given outside of the home at Tiffin, O., and the first visit the team has ever made to Pittsburgh. William Earl Rapp is president of the District Council.

WEST. ELECTRIC UP IN NEW YORK

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt continued its upward movement in the short session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, selling at a new high record in reflection of the steadily diminishing floating supply of the stock.

First sale on Screw and Bolt was at an overnight gain of a full point and subsequent transactions were recorded at rising figures. Company's business so far this year is said to be running well ahead of last year, when, for the full calendar, the earnings were equivalent to approximately $5 a share on the stock. If the ratio of increase continues through the year, it is not unlikely the directors will take some favorable dividend action, either in the way of raising the rate from the present $3 annual basis or by the declaration of an extra toward the end of the year.

Carnegie Metals held its recent gains in today's sessions with spirited bidding for the shares between 26½ and 27.

Standard Sanitary was rather sluggish at a fraction above 35. There was no noticeable selling of the stock, however, despite the somewhat disappointing dividend action when directors yesterday ordered payments on the new stock at a rate equivalent to that paid on the old shares.

Fuels were dull and made no response whatever to the strong buying of oil and gas stocks in the New York market.

Westinghouse Electric was one of the strongest stocks on the "big board" also, but there was no reflection of the movement in the local dealings.

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PITTSBURGH
3½% GOLD BONDS.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by G. W. Gerwig, Secretary, in the office of the Board of Public Education, 720 Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, until 3 o'clock P. M. May 22nd for One Million Five Hundred Thousand ($1,500,000.00) Dollars school loan for the purpose of raising the necessary funds for procuring sites and erecting and equipping buildings and additions for elementary and high schools in said School District under the provisions of an Act of Assembly entitled, 'An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, etc.;' on conditions as follows:

The bonds are serial, with maturities beginning on the first day of May, 1929, and annually thereafter, until and including May 1st, 1958.

Bonds will be in denomination of $1,000 in common form; payable principal and interest in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness. Said bonds may be registered and the principal sum will bear interest at the rate of three and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of May and November; the first payment of interest to be on the first day of November, 1928; said loan and interest are payable free from all taxes in Pennsylvania, and is free from Federal Income Tax.

The School District of Pittsburgh will submit a bid for the entire issue and, if awarded, said bonds will be purchased for the Sinking Funds, Pension Fund and Fire Insurance Fund of the School District.

PROPOSALS MUST BE UNCONDITIONAL AND MADE UPON A PRESCRIBED FORM OF BLANKS, TO BE OBTAINED UPON APPLICATION AT THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.

No bid, except the bid of the School District, will be considered unless accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Treasurer of the School District of Pittsburgh for two per centum of the par value of the bonds bid for.

Checks accompanying unaccepted bids will be returned to the bidders promptly. Checks of successful bidders will be held until the last of the bonds bid for by the depositor has been taken and paid for. No interest allowed on check until acceptance of bid, and thereafter interest will be allowed thereon at three and one-half per centum per annum.

Settlement in full for the loan awarded must be made with the School Treasurer on or before May 28, 1928, at three o'clock P. M., and shall include payment of accrued interest from May 1st, 1928, to day of settlement.

The Board of Public Education has the right to reject any or all proposals, or award any portion of the loan, as it may deem best for the interest of the School District of Pittsburgh.

The proceedings for this loan and the legality of the issue have been approved by J. Rodgers McCreery, Esq., of Pittsburgh, and a copy of his letter attesting legality may be had on application.

THE BOARD OF PUBLIC EDUCATION.
MARCUS AARON, President,
G. W. GERWIG, Secretary,
JOHN H. HENDERSON, School Controller.
J. RODGERS McCREERY, Solicitor.

15TH U. S. ENGINEERS TO BANQUET TONIGHT

The annual reunion and banquet of the Fifteenth United States Engineers will be held in the Moose Temple, Pittsburgh, this evening.

RAID 21ST WARD REPUBLICAN CLUB

The Twenty-first Ward Republican Club, second floor, 1437 Beaver avenue, North Side, was raided last night by Federal prohibition agents. Search revealed two quart bottles, one partly filled with gin, the other with whisky, the agents said. No one was in the clubrooms and no arrests were made. Investigation was begun to determine the identity of the proprietor.

Contraband material valued at $1,500 was seized, agents said, in a raid on the dwelling at 970 Washington boulevard. The seizure included a 150-gallon still, 35 barrels of mash, 150 pounds of yeast and 25 gallons of moonshine, it was announced. No one was "at home."

A series of other raids were made during the day. Places raided, seizures made and those arrested, according to the agents, follow:

Dwelling at 1401 Gilmore way, 150-gallon still, 34 barrels of mash, 21 empty five-gallon cans.

Dwelling at 721 Anaheim street, 20 gallons moonshine, Joseph Hamovitz.

Dwelling at 926 Cherry way, Braddock; five-gallon still, barrell mash, five gallons moonshine, Mrs. Katherine Bulanosky.

Dwelling at 4 Avon way, 25-gallon still, 10 barrels mash, two quarts moonshine.

Saloon at 723 Federal street, two gallons moonshine, Denny Butler.

Dwelling at 1319 Penn avenue, 22½ quarts beer, six gallons moonshine, two barrels beer, Mrs. Rose Lolan.

Saloons at 1100 Beaver avenue, five-gallons wine, two quarts moonshine, Michael Leahy.

Dwelling at 12 Sherman street, Millvale, 25-gallon still, 15 gallons mash, 500 pounds corn sugar, 24 pounds yeast, Stephen Medack and Mrs. Anna Preiachy.

Saloon at 800 East Ohio street, half pint of wine, Joseph Moriary.

Dwelling at 1027 Bustrick way, two gallons moonshine, John Gabriel.

Dwelling at 1025 Bustrick way, pint moonshine.

Dwelling at 1418 Bedford avenue, 55-gallon still, 15-gallon still, 12 barrels mash and four five-gallon empty barrels.

The residence at 1418 Bedford avenue was raided after, the agents say, they discovered 20 gallons of moonshine in an automobile driven by Mason A. Lahood, 32, of 851 Jefferson street. The car had been parked in front of the place. Lahood was arrested and the raid followed.

VETERAN JUDGE BANQUETED

Judge John A. Evans, president judge of Common Pleas Court, was honor guest last night at an Allegheny County Bar Association banquet in the Duquesne Club. Judge Evans has the longest service record of any jurist in the state, having been on the bench in Allegheny county for more than 30 years.

Joseph Stadtfeld, president of the Bar Association, was toastmaster. Speakers included Judge Thomas P. Trimble of Orphans Court and Attorney William Watson Smith.

EVANGELICAL'S EDITOR TO SPEAK AT BANQUET

The Rev. Edwin G. Frye, editor of the "Evangelical Messenger," will be the principal speaker at the banquet of the Evangelical churches of the Pittsburgh area, Tuesday night at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

HUNDREDS BACK MOTHER SUING FOR CHILD

Several hundred men and women crowded Judge James H. Gray's Court room yesterday to testify that Mrs. Bertha Swiss is fitted to have the custody of her two children.

Mrs. Swiss, who lives at 6139 Jackson street, and her husband Allan Swiss, separated March 22, the father keeping the boy, aged 5. The girl, 3, remained with her mother. Mrs. Swiss through her counsel, Rody P. Marshall and Esther I. Katten, brought a habeas corpus action to gain possession of the boy, and Swiss countered with an action to get posession of the girl. Mrs. Swiss was given temporary possession of the children last Tuesday. The case will not be finished until next week.

TAR PAPER IN CONDUIT DRAWS GREAT THRONG

While a vast downtown throng crowded behind police lines, firemen last evening donned gas masks and entered a conduit in Seventh street near Penn avenue where they extinguished burning tar paper. The fire had been caused by a carelessly tossed match or cigaret. There was no damage. Traffic in Seventh street was delayed more than half an hour.

NOTICE is hereby given that ordinances, copies of which are published herewith, were introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, on April 2, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof within its limits, viz:

Bill No. 1608.

An Ordinance vacating a portion of Harcum way in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from South Twenty-eighth street to a point 312 feet east of the easterly line of South Twenty-eighth street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of Harcum way, in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, as shown on the plan of Ormsby Borough of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Volume 4, pages 204 and 205, from South Twenty-eighth street to a point 312 feet east of the easterly line of South Twenty-eighth street, be and the same is hereby vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Bill No. 1609.

An Ordinance vacating a portion of Jane street, in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from South Thirtieth street to a point 460 feet west of the westerly line of South Thirtieth street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of Jane street, in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh as shown on the plan of Ormsby Borough of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Volume 4 pages 204 and 205, from South Thirtieth street to a point 460 feet west of the westerly line of South Thirtieth street, be and the same is hereby vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Bill No. 1610.

An Ordinance vacating those portions of South Thirty-first street, South Thirty-second street, South Thirty-third street and South Thirty-fourth street in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, extending from Sarah street to Jane street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that those portions of South Thirty-first street, South Thirty-second street, South Thirty-third street and South Thirty-fourth street in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh as shown on the Plan of Ormsby Borough of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book Volume 4, pages 204 and 205, extending from Sarah street to Jane street, be and the same are hereby vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Bill No. 1611.

An Ordinance vacating those portions of South Thirty-fifth street and South Thirty-sixth street in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh extending from Sarah street to Larkins way.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that those portions of South Thirty-fifth street and South Thirty-sixth street in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh as shown on the plan of Ormsby Borough of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Volume 4, pages 204 and 205, extending from Sarah street to Larkins way, be and the same are hereby vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Bill No. 1612.

An Ordinance vacating that portion of Jane street in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, lying north of the northerly 12 foot curb line thereof, extending from South Thirtieth street to the angle at South Thirty-fourth street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that that portion of Jane street in the 16th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh as shown on the Plan of Ormsby Borough of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Volume 4, pages 204 and 205, lying north of the northerly 12 foot curb line thereof and extending from South Thirtieth street to the angle at South Thirty-fourth street, be and the same is hereby vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that ordinances, copies of which are published herewith, were introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, on April 2, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without petition of property owners to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 995.

AN ORDINANCE vacating a portion of South Twelfth street (formerly Denman street), in the 17th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 73.9 feet south of the northerly line of Breed street to Manor street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of South Twelfth street (formerly Denman street) in the 17th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh as shown on the plan of the Borough of Birmingham of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Volume 1, page 78, from a point 73.9 feet south of the northerly line of Breed street, said point being at the southerly line of South Twelfth street as dedicated by Ordinance No. 56 approved June 8th, 1904, to Manor street, be and the same is hereby vacated.

SECTION 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

BILL NO. 996.

AN ORDINANCE vacating that portion of Birmingham street in the 17th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, extending from Welsh way to the intersection of Manor street and South Twelfth street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That that portion of Birmingham street, in the 17th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, extending from Welsh way to the intersection of Manor street and South Twelfth street, being all that portion of Birmingham street, as shown on a Plan of Lots laid out by Rt. Rev. THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . . A Pathetic Example

AFTER GUSTAVE BROWN THE ELDER CONFESSED THAT HE WAS THE RICHEST MAN IN NEW BABYLON, AND FOUND SO MANY BROWN FAMILY CHARACTERISTICS IN HIS BRAND NEW NAMESAKE, THE YOUNGER GUSTAVE BROWN CLOSED THE MEMORY TRAINING SCHOOL EARLY AND WENT TO DINNER WITH HIS ADMIRER.
SOFT LIGHTS, DELIGHTFUL MUSIC, AND RICH FOOD. I LOVE THEM! THEY'RE PROVING AN OASIS IN THE DESERT OF WHAT HAS BEEN A VERY BUSY LIFE. AT THE TENDER AGE OF 14 I STARTED ON MY CLIMB TO WEALTH. TODAY I HAVE SO MUCH MONEY THAT THE VERY THOUGHT OF ACCUMULATING MORE BORES ME. AND YET AFTER ALL WEALTH DOES NOT MAKE ONE HAPPY
YES THAT'S TRUE, I KNOW HOW YOU FEEL ABOUT THAT—BY HEARSAY, OF COURSE, BUT—
WEALTH IS A CURSE! FOR YEARS I HAVE DESPISED IT, BUT IN SPITE OF, AT TIMES, SIMPLY FRANTIC EFFORTS, MY FORTUNE HAS DOUBLED, TREBLED OVER NIGHT. AH, ONLY THE POOR MAN KNOWS THE JOY THAT MILLIONS CANNOT GIVE.
YES THAT SOUNDS VERY REASONABLE. ON THE OTHER HAND IT'S POSSIBLE TO SAY A GOOD WORD NOW AND THEN, IN A WAY, FOR WEALTH. DON'T YOU THINK SO?
FRANKLY, NO! TAKE MY OWN CASE. I HAVE MILLIONS! BILLIONS! FOR FORTY YEARS THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR HAS OCCUPIED THE PLACE IN MY LIFE WHERE A WIFE AND KIDDIES SHOULD HAVE BEEN. TODAY I AM CHILDLESS AND ALONE. WHAT IS WEALTH WHEN ONE HASN'T EVEN AN HEIR?
TOUGH! VERY! AH, KINDLY LET ME HAVE YOUR HAT. THERE'S A BIT OF DUST THAT SHOULD BE BRUSHED OFF IT.

BUGS BAER Says

IF WE didn't know that Aguinaldo had simmered down to fragile politics in Manila, we would suspect that he had opened up a branch office down on the Isthmus.

If it ain't Aguinaldo, then it must be Sandino who has been captured seven times, killed fourteen times and wounded so often that you could strain coffee through his shoulder blades.

ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Nobody seems to know just who Sandino is, where he is or how he got there. When our War Department states that we are not at war with Sandino it is merely following our policy of paying no attention to anonymous threats.

Sandino seems to think that he can choke two continents by squeezing an Isthmus. He spends his happy childhood hours capturing gold mines, ten-cent stores and oil wells.

From what we have seen of wars, there would be handsomer battles if we fired the generals and allowed the armies to be led by the newsreel men.

If the marines want to snag Sandino, they should follow a guy with a camera.

The Sandino war is costing some money, and we don't even get an orator out of it. We know the marines are the first to fight, but this time the matchmaking is bad.

If we cannot turn it over to Tex Rickard, why not allow C. C. Pyle to run his bunion derby through the Isthmus and give Sandino some competition?

New School Bonds Show Board's Credit Is High

The Board of Public Education has authorized an issue of $1,500,000 bonds for the construction of the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School in Bedford avenue. The completed structure will be a notable addition to Pittsburgh's extensive educational plant. It will be something of which the city can be proud in that it will represent an expansion in special educational facilities in line with modern trends. In providing for it our Board of Education again demonstrates its close touch with the demands of the times.

There is special significance, too, in the arrangements for financing. The issue is to bear an interest rate of 3.5 per cent. Not in many years have school bonds been sold at such a low rate, and the board's ability to place an issue at that figure indicates its credit is on par with that of the Federal Government. In 1923 and 1925 the board issued bonds at 4.1 per cent, the lowest rate in years. Now it is in a position to get money needed at a still lower figure.

It expects bids because there is money available at 3.5 per cent for sound tax-exempt bonds, but in case it receives none it wishes to accept, the bonds will be purchased by the board's own sinking fund, which will be able to sell Liberty bonds at a profit of $66,000 in order to take up its own issue.

We must give members of our Board of Education credit for being good financiers as well as capable planners for the extension of our school system.

Are Gold Star Mothers To Be Sidetracked?

His comrades in the great war—especially those living in Connecticut—will be hard put, as we believe, to explain the failure of the junior senator in Congress from that state—Mr. Bingham—to hold a hearing to date upon the Gold Star Mother bill.

For nearly two months this bill has been in the custody of a sub-committee, of which Senator Bingham is chairman. Not only has he failed to hold a hearing, but he has not even said when, if ever, a hearing might be held.

How differently the House of Representatives treated this legislation. It was introduced last December by Representative Butler, of Pennsylvania, reported favorably from the Committee on Military Affairs by Representative Morin of Pennsylvania, the chairman. Last February the House passed it without the formality of a roll call.

You have only to read the title of the Gold Star Mothers bill to hope with all your heart that it will pass at this session. It reads: "A bill to enable the mothers and unmarried widows of the deceased soldiers, sailors and marines of the American forces interred in the cemeteries of Europe to make a pilgrimage to these cemeteries." This pilgrimage would be conducted and paid for by the Federal Government.

Surely such a measure deserves fairer treatment at the hands of a headservant at Washington of the American people than it has thus far received from the junior senator from Connecticut.

What do the people of Connecticut think about it? What do the veterans of the great war living there and elsewhere think about it?

Senator Bingham is entitled to know directly by letter or telegram. Perhaps he is waiting to hear from his constituents in Connecticut and his comrades throughout the country before he makes up his mind about the Gold Star Mothers bill.

His address is "Senator Bingham, United States Senate, Washington, D. C."

Old and Beautiful

The Spirit Never Dies

ELLEN TERRY AT 80.

This remarkable British actress, loved by millions, began her work on the stage in 1862—sixty-six years ago, when only 14 years old.

For fifty years she delighted great audiences.

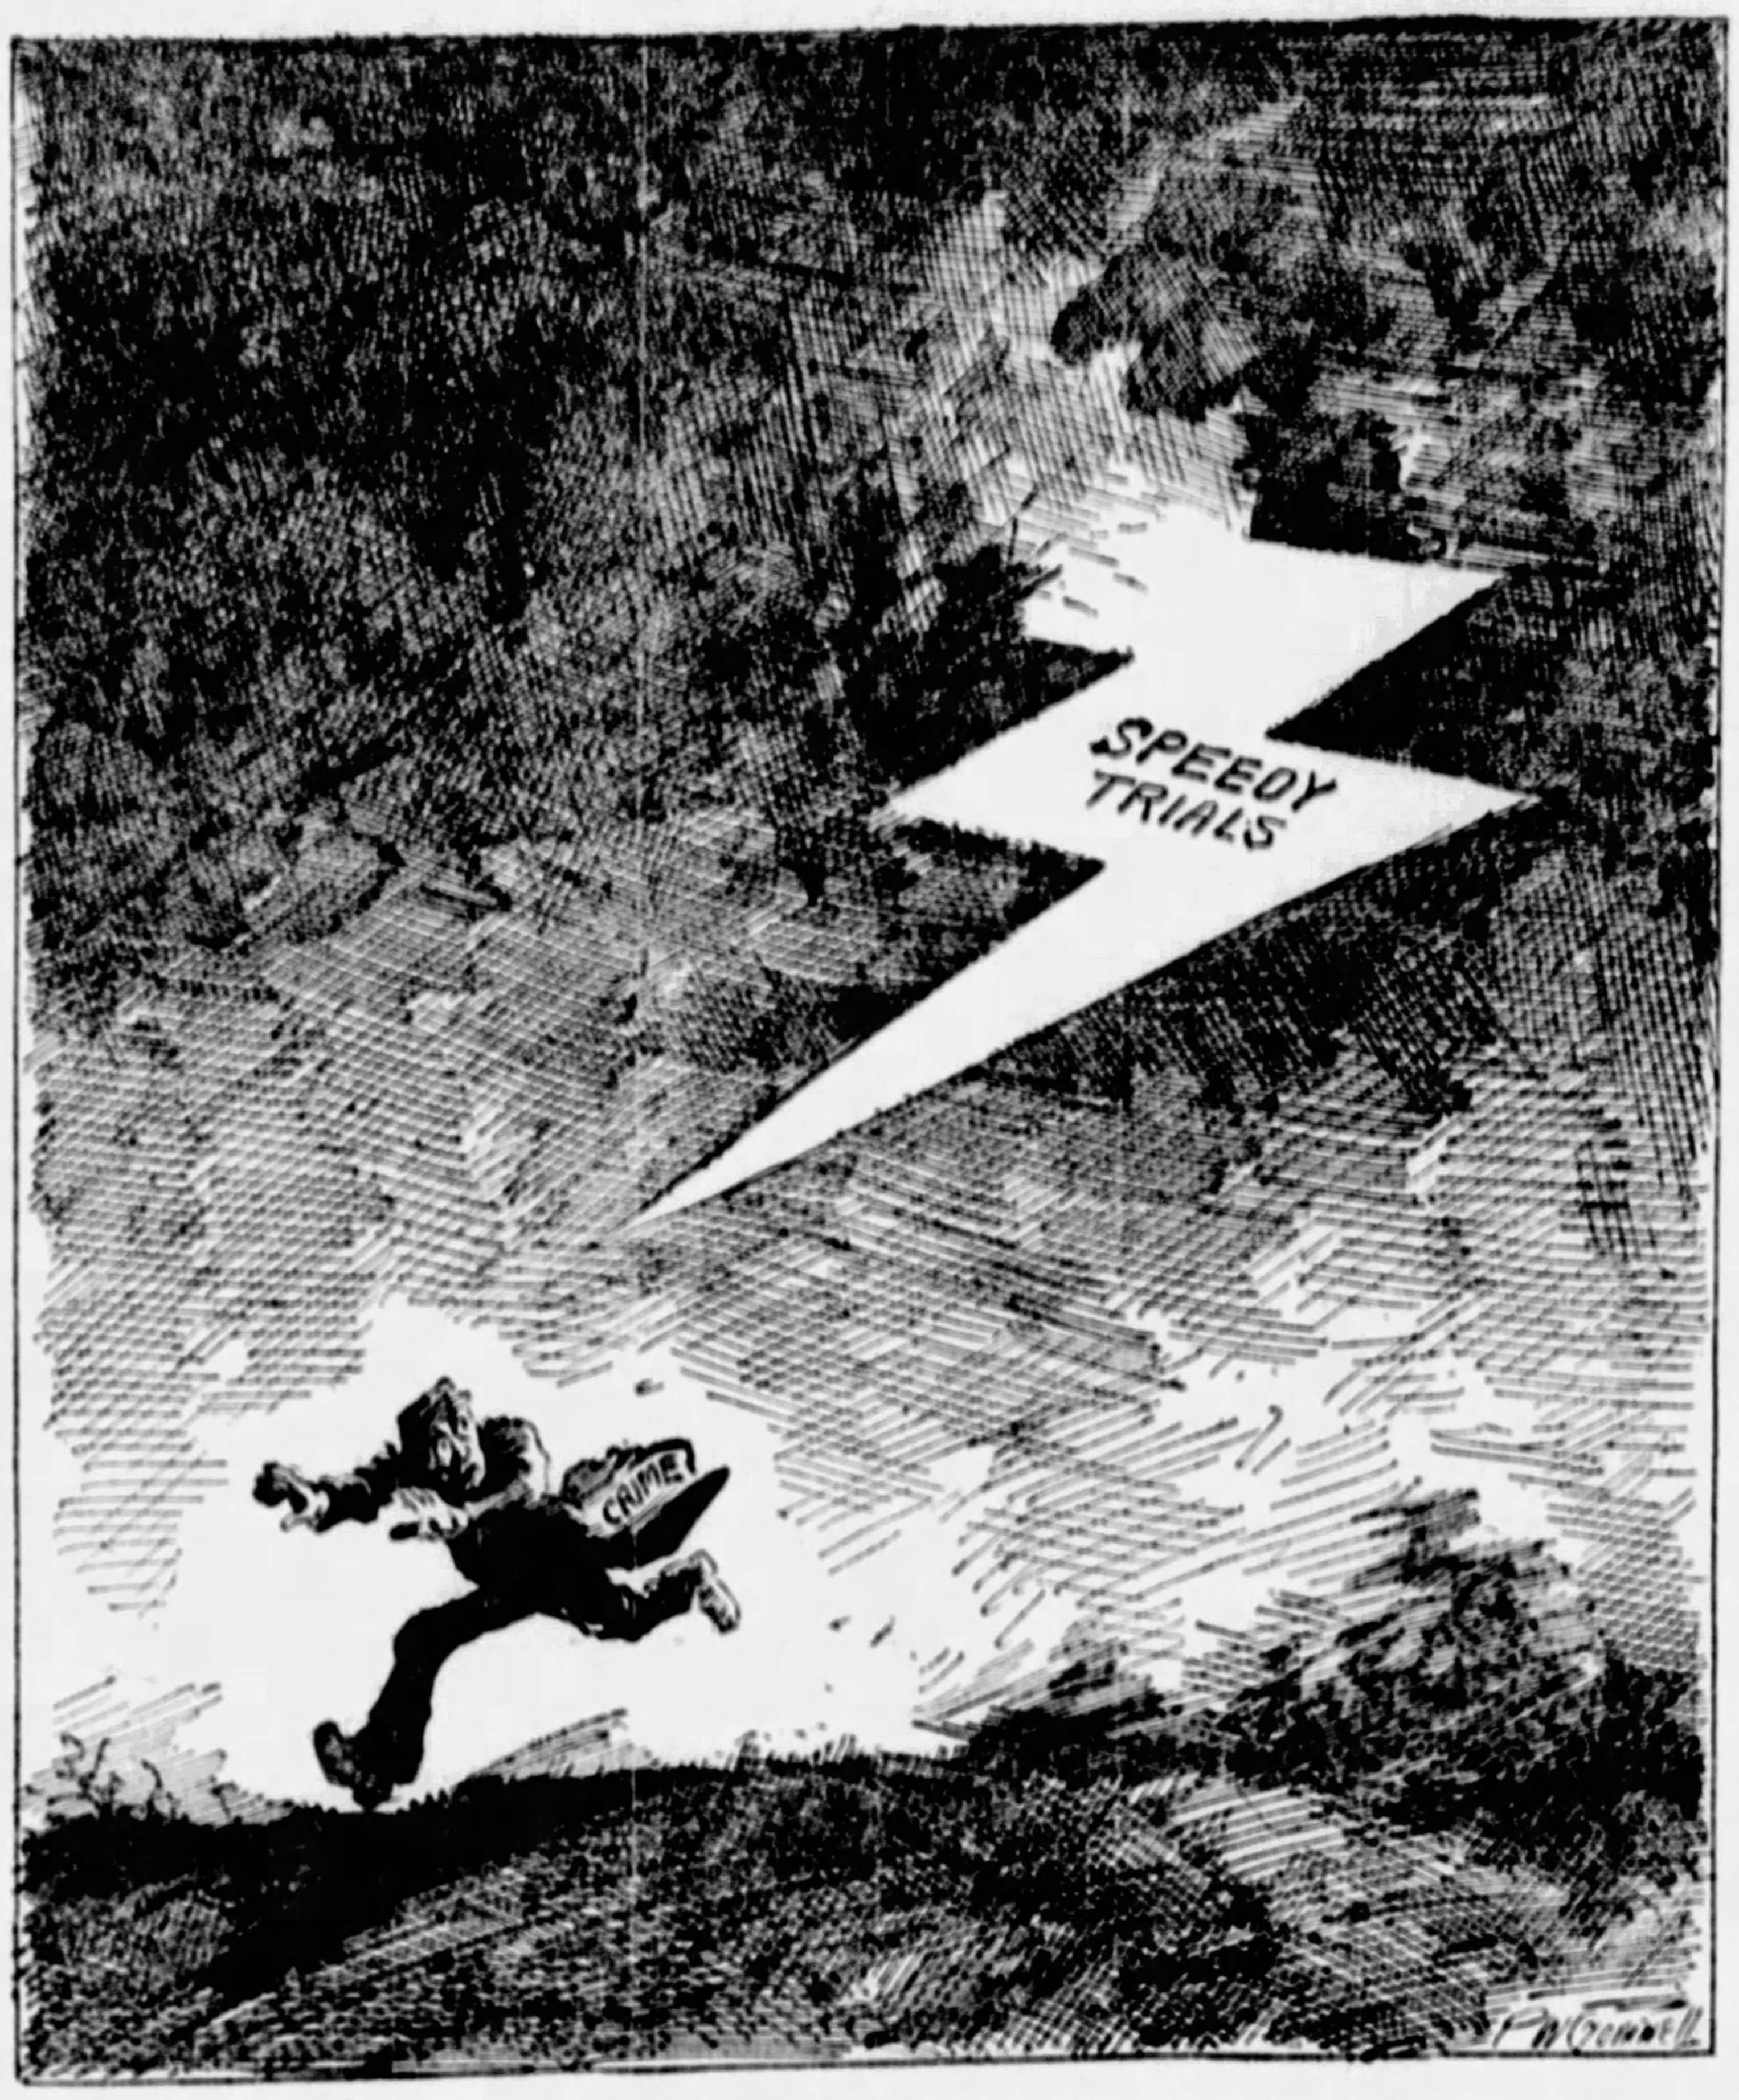
And in old age she retains youth, happiness and BEAUTY.

Human beings, like trees, DIE AT THE TOP. While the top of the tree lives, while the brain of the human being remains active and interested, vitality and beauty remain.

Ellen Terry's eyes are as young as they were 50 years ago, and her soul is as young as it was when she went on the stage at 14.

Winter has come, the hair is white. The spirit never gets old.

WHEN THE GUILTY ARE AFRAID



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Is Walking a Lost Art?

THE lengthening days bring on the spell of the country. On holidays and Sundays the autos streaming past my dooryard in the bright morning sunshine look like glittering black beetles, with a few blazing red and yellow ones among them, rushing like mad to get somewhere first. They are pouring from the city, and they go like schoolboys let out. It is the "glory of motion" that most of them seek, but they will get more or less of the glory of the country, too, even if they do not look for it.

The greatest blessing that the automobile has given is this urge to get out into airy spaces, among the trees, fields, streams, under a smokeless sky, where nature is still to be seen. It brings a vast expansion of the joy of life. But there is an older joy which it should not be permitted to displace—the joy of meeting nature on foot. If every auto ride could be supplemented with a foot excursion to the summit of an inviting hill, or through a forest trail, or along the course of a stony-bedded stream, new pleasures would be added and more health-giving exercise obtained.

Nature and man are old acquaintances, and she will not let him go. He has many temptations to stay away from her in these days, but a mere glance often brings him back. When he is ill, he longs for her. Sometimes her influence seems mysterious to him. Hear Emerson:

"Crossing a bare common, in snow-puddles, at twilight, under a clouded sky, without having in my thoughts any occurrence of special good fortune, I have enjoyed a perfect exhilaration. I am glad to the brink of fear. In the woods, too, a man casts off his years, as the snake his slough, and, in what period soever of life, is always a child. In the woods is perpetual youth."

How well the truth of that is known to those who have lived long in the country! A Sunday morning walk in the woods, amidst the quiet of the holy day, finding rare flowers that never bloom in the open, hearing and seeing the coy inhabitants who are a little suspicious of you, breathing perfumes that belong only to the woods—this, however heretical it may sound, is for a thoughtful, impressionable person often better than a sermon and a song by the choir.

In the East our Appalachian clubs are yearly adding more miles to their "long trails" which, traversing the heights and dipping through the valleys, may almost be said to form a chain from the Carolinas to the Adirondacks and the mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire. To follow that chain, on foot, from end to end would be a summer's rapture. Nor are short walks to be disdained.

The art of walking is not known to every stepper. Walking breeds thought. Many a poem has been born from a stroll. Many a great speech has been wrought out of the marble during a long, lonely walk. No physical exercise reacts so stimulantly upon the brain as pedestrianism.

When man began to walk erect, he began to perceive and to think; and the organism remembers its prime. If human locomotion should ever be made purely mechanical, the triumph of mind over matter would not be unalloyed; humanity would lose much that now gives it delight and keeps it closer to the constitution of things.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Give and Take

IF you want others to be interested in you, you must show some interest in those with whom you come in contact.

You have few friends because you do not take an interest in others.

If it takes self-denial or any effort on your part to win the good favor of someone you like you won't cultivate that person.

You don't want a friendship that interferes in the least with you.

Of course you are willing to accept favors and allow others to put themselves out for you, since you do not ask it, you say.

But these favors you take as a matter of course and let the matter drop.

Then you wonder why you have so little attention.

No matter how interesting your conversation, no matter how high your intellectual or social standing, if you don't do your part for society you are doomed to be alone much.

There are too many who are both congenial and appreciative in acts as well as words to bother with a person who takes all and gives nothing.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

His Life Was Rich

HIS life was rich because he cared
 Not overmuch for worldly gain,
But with his neighbors gladly shared
 His joys, and with them shared their pain.

His life was sweet because he knew
 No touch of envy, malice, hate,
But to youth's fair ideals was true
 And kept old faiths inviolate.

His life was full. He thrust aside
 The ranks of false desires. He trod
On foolish vanity and pride,
 His life was full of love and God.

Tales that are Told

Magic and Muddle

A WELL-KNOWN illusionist's assistant had to disappear from the stage, run around the corner from the stage door, and make his appearance in the front of the house.

One week the illusionist was appearing in a town where the theater was situated on a corner, but the entrance was several doors down the street. Between the entrance and the corner was a small movie theater, which had a pretentious box-office.

The assistant started from the stage door, rounded the corner, and, seeing the box-office of the movie, mistook it for the entrance to his theater.

He pushed the ticket collector aside, dashed down the aisle, fired a pistol, and shouted, "Here I am!"

Then he discovered his mistake.

Piling It On

BON and Bill were chums who shared the same diggings. Bill suddenly discovered that he wanted to write a letter.

"Lend me your fountain pen, Bob?" he asked.

"Here you are!" cried Bob, tossing it over. "Don't spoil the nib."

There was silence until Bill had completed his letter. Then he found he hadn't got a stamp. He turned once again to Bob.

"Here you are!" said the latter. "You're in luck; it's my last one."

"Thanks!" smiled his friend. "Now, just one thing more, old boy. What's your girl's address?"

Love's Alarm

THEY had been sitting together for some time when the girl's father entered the drawing-room and said:

"Young man, do you know what time it is?"

The timid youth leapt to his feet and, stammering, "Y-yes!" hurried into the hall and then out into the night.

The girl's father stood bewildered.

"That's a queer fellow to have calling on you, Edna," he remarked. "Why did he rush off like that? My watch had stopped, and I merely wanted to get the time from him to set it going again."

Sarcastic

AS HE pushed his ladders down the street a sharp-eyed window-cleaner noticed that the windows of a certain house were very dirty.

"Would you like the windows cleaned, sir?" he asked a man who was mowing the lawn.

The other peered angrily over the tops of his spectacles.

"No," he snapped. "They don't require cleaning."

The window-cleaner sighed regretfully, and asked softly:

"May I give your spectacles a wipe over, sir?"

Something Bright

THE earnest woman was talking to the giddy young thing.

"And would you like to join in our latest movement?" she said, eagerly.

"Certainly, old dear," answered the giddy young thing. "Is it anything like the Charleston?"

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: Good Mothers Are Made

HERE is a picture of a peevish young mother. The woods are full of them. But don't worry about that. The woods have always been full of them—and yet they've hung up some pretty good records.

I'll let Margie tell her own story:

"Dear Elsie:

"You spoke recently of women who were good wives but poor mothers. Well, Elsie, I'm one of them.

"My husband says I'm a perfect housekeeper and a perfect wife, but when it comes to my four-year-old daughter, I'm 'all wet.'

"I don't know why, but that little piece of humanity makes my nerves dance all day long. We've moved to an out-of-the-way place which is very inconvenient for my husband, just to give her a place to play, with a porch, but she's not content to play on it; she wants to play on the street with the boys.

"She has lots of toys, but still she always wants what she hasn't got. She talks to me sometimes so that I feel just like wringing her neck. I hold off spanking her when she does something she ought not to do, but when I do let go I'm terrible. Then I feel bad after and hate myself for it.

"What's the matter with me, Elsie? I've only one and I have no patience—my mother had thirteen and she was so easy going.

"I'm just twenty years older than my baby, being married seven years; perhaps it's because I only have the one that I act that way, is it?

"MARGIE."

Do you act that way because you have just one child?

No, my dear, you act that way because you're an ordinary, lazy, stupid, selfish human being—like all the rest of the race. But you don't realize that you are like all the rest of the race. You think that you're Something Unusual, Specially Created For the Twentieth Century and therefore quite incapable of tackling your grandma's common chores.

You're all wrong, Margie. It is true that some women like children more than others, but any woman can be a good mother if she'll put her mind and heart to the task. And when you come right down to brass tacks, motherhood is just as hard for a woman who likes children as it is for one who doesn't.

Mothering is never easy for anyone. Good mothers don't just happen. Fine motherhood is never ready made. We must achieve it, every day, with everlasting patience and tact and devotion, and sacrifice. And horse sense.

Your mother got along with her 13 children because she realized and accepted the fact. She didn't have a lot of temperamental ideas about herself—she didn't go around being sorry for herself because she had to stay home and take care of her youngsters while other women gadded about. She knew that marriage and motherhood were her jobs. She knew they were hard jobs and she rolled up her sleeves and tackled them. Her children pestered her just as much as yours pesters you. And she longed to wring their necks just as often as you do. But she didn't wring them. And now you look back and think she was a saint. She wasn't. She was as human as you are.

So fix on that "I'm different" alibi, old girl. There's nothing unique about you. You're exactly as good ' as bad as your mother was before you. And you're facing the same hard scrap. It's up to you to decide whether you'll go down in history as an honest soldier or a slacker.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 28.—Americans who have visited the home of Ralph Barton, the artist, in Paris will not be surprised to learn he has been offered an enormous figure for the motion picture which he unreels for friends and which he directed, photographed, edited and titled.

It is a movie of the celebrities who have visited the unique mansion Barton and his French wife occupy in rue Nicolo. And has been fashioned into a three-reel travesty of "Camille," the entire action taking place in a cozy corner of the Barton home.

The chief humor is in the hilarious captions done in the Bertha M. Clay manner. Anita Loos is "Camille," and her husband, John Emerson, is Armand. There is a prologue in which Sinclair Lewis offers allegorical studies of Greed, Hate, Love, Fear and so on.

The piece de resistance is the scene in which Sascha Guitry and his wife, Yvonne Printemps, engage in animated conversation with Charlie Chaplin. The Guitrys speak no English and Chaplin speaks no French, but they argue and coo, and it offers a bit of rare artistry.

Chaplin has another scene with Mrs. Ralph Barton, an accomplished pianist and composer, in which they render a piano duet with grave concert air seriousness. Ethel Barrymore "emotes" in a weepy scene following the death of Camille, as do Pauline Starke and Richard Barthelmess.

Alfred Knopf plays a wily Arab desert chieftain, and scarcely needs a make-up. Paul Robeson, the Negro actor, is shown in the prologue as Dumas, the author, dashing off his immortal tome between copious flagons of fiery brandy. H. L. Mencken and Joseph Hergesheimer have a ribald drunken scene.

Others moving through the picture are George Jean Nathan, Paul Claudel, Ferenc Molnar, Somerset Maugham, Patsy Ruth Miller and Julia Hoyt. But it is Chaplin who carries off top honors. With forks in two breakfast rolls, he mimics his own splay feet and walk that would stamp him a great comedian without other achievements. Mr. Barton will, of course, not sell the picture, for all artists contributed their services for strictly private production.

The hostesses employed in the Alice Foote MacDougall coffee houses of Italian and Spanish splendor are not permitted to wear short hair on duty. If the head has been shingled, a switch must be worn. Mrs. MacDougall does not think short hair becoming. From a canvasser of coffee, Mrs. MacDougall has become one of the foremost business women in New York. Her restaurants and coffee salesroom do a gross turn over of more than three millions annually. She applied imagination and romance to a prosaic business and, well, try to get in any of her places at the rush hour.

It is my conviction most business enterprises skidding into bankruptcy courts flop there as result of a lack of imagination. Woolworth had the cheapest of cheap ideas until he gave it the flame of imagination. The movie is a nickel entertainment idea glorified. The list is endless. As a rule, where you find a drab business you find a drab imagination.

* * *

Every writer reaches the presumptuous stage of attempting to be philosophic. I find myself doing it more and more. And it must be pretty tiresome. Philosophers are born—never made. So don't mind me. Just a fair alto trying to be a little coloratura.

* * *

I have been chuckling all day at a picture in Punch, and five people to whom I showed it never cracked a smile. A tattered, disheveled victim who had just been run over by an expensive car was protesting to the haughty dowager in the back seat. Gazing at him through her lorgnette, she remarked: "One would think you had never been run over before."

The Parent-Teachers' Association

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the most intelligent and common sense movements that has ever been formed is the organization of the Parent-Teachers' Association.

It has been a country-wide movement and has everywhere engaged the championship of the best minds.

This association is applying itself to the important problem of how to train children, and to the best methods of developing within them the right kind of ideals.

Than these there can be nothing more important. The best place to control crime, it is universally acknowledged, is at the source. Better inculcate in children right notions of living in the first place than afterwards depend upon punishment of one kind or another. The punishment of the mature criminal is the price we pay for the lack of training of the immature person. Most criminals can look back upon a youth that was improperly cared for.

It is proper enough to have an ambition to become a great writer, a great speaker, or a great person of affairs, but the most laudable ambition is to be a great parent.

Mothers are learning that there is something more needed in the care of children than merely affection, for that affection may often be so misguided as to do the child more harm than good, especially when it intervenes constantly between the child and the painful consequences of his misdeeds.

The Parent-Teachers' Association seeks to make of both the mother and the teacher a friend and wise companion of the growing human being.

Both teachers and parents are improving in quality and that improvement is perhaps the most significant form of advanced civilization. The wealth of a country lies in the quality of its teachers. The veins of wealth are not the yellow veins of gold, but the blue veins of blood, and any movement that can improve the quality of the blood is more important than one which merely adds to our material resources.

And the work of the teacher is incomplete without the co-operation of the parent; in fact the teacher is but the assistant of the parent. She acts in "loco parentas" and the best results can only be obtained then both teacher and parent are properly trained.

The normal schools for teachers aim to better the quality of the instructor, and what those schools do for the teacher the Parent-Teachers' Association is trying to do for the parent.

Any one who has had dealing with little ones knows that he learns quite as much from those children as he teaches to them, and that the business of training children is so important that it ought not to be conducted by rule of thumb. The parent should take advantage of psychology and other studies.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

A PRESBYTERIAN minister named G. B. Switzer, berates modern mothers for permitting their daughters to become dizzy.

If he means for becoming blondes, the question is: How you going to keep 'em from being blondes after they've read Anita Loos?

The Rev. Dr. Morris Lichtenstein, addressing the Jewish Science Services, says that woman is neither inferior nor superior to man, but she differs in her method of reaction.

If a man feels that it is the pleasure of his women folks to regard their knees "as entertaining rather than joints," it doesn't interest him half as much as the fact that they will wear them that way and he can't stop them.

The fact is their reactions do not bother him half as much as their actions.

The Department of Labor says there are more than 2,000,000 married women gainfully employed in America today.

Married working women appease their husbands with bright new neckties and gala socks, but what men want is bigger and better babies and their favorite perfume, which is the scent of baked things when they come home at night. You can't get the halter on them if they know that marriage is going to mean meeting a woman in a cafe at 6:30, paying for her dinner, and then going home and falling over the furniture while they try to find the electric light button.

Dorothy Paul Wade, who for four years has been living with her doctor husband on a leper island in the Philippines, says all leper babies are born "clean" and placed in detention camps. Leper mothers, unable to have their children, become so heart-hungry that they creep close to the camp and pet the little ones through the apertures.

The Gen. Leonard Wood Fund, for seeking a cure for leprosy, means only one thing to these mothers—a possible chance to have and to hold their own children. To them it is the only hope worth entertaining.

Two women, Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, of New York, and Mrs. Anna Hearn, of Brooklyn, were saved from drowning a few days ago. The officer who grabbed Mrs. Lee out of the icy water stopped a passing hearse, put the lady into the empty coffin and got her to a hospital in time to save her life.

The other lady was hauled out as she was disappearing for the last time.

A drowning woman can be saved. These are lucky they didn't fall in love!
